History in 500 Words
A Giant Motor
Why Have Battleships?
Crime's Loud Voice

CALVIN COOLIDGE will write a 500 word history of this country to be carved in letters on a mountain side.

Mr. Coolidge, laconic, will say much in 500 words. And enough could be said in fewer words; for instance:

Europeans landed on the east coast of North America, killed off the Indians and drove out King George, not liking taxation without representation.

They established industrial feudalism in place of military feudalism, and many money kings in place of one English king. They fought among themselves once, North against South. Now, all united, they are building a great nation, great prosperity.

There is danger of their going abroad to receive directions from a league court, or a league of European nations, instead of continuing to rely upon themselves.

The English are building a speed automobile, described as "enormous and terrifying in appearance." With an engine of 4000 horsepower, it is expected to break the world's speed record of 231.36 miles an hour. In spite of its great length, 25 feet, the giant car, rising only three and a half feet above the ground, weighs only 11,000 pounds. It has two wide fins at the rear end like those of a dirigible. Its 12 cylinders, cast in aluminum, are lined with a very light metal.

This is all interesting, for it means engine improvements that will be utilized in airplane construction later. They are useless on the ground.

The thing that interests the average man is to get the kind of automobile that will get him where he wants to go and bring him back, and that every man should do, rather than admit that his time is worth nothing.

MacDonald, intelligent British statesman, would abandon battleship building.

Our delegates to the naval conference do NOT want the battleship given up. But for their high character, you might think they had heard the siren voice of battleship and armor plate lobbyists.

Battleships are out of date, mere targets for airplane bombs, profitable only to their makers, costing 50 to 60 million dollars each.

Perhaps our delegates will hear from President Hoover, who is NOT out of date, and knows that Britain's great battle fleet played no part in the last war, primitive aircraft and submarines making it useless.

What would modern planes and submarines do?

Crimes speak louder than words, and very loud in this fair country just now.

A man arrested in Chicago, accused of participating in the "St. Valentine's Day massacre," was delighted to find that "only policemen" were after him.

Said he:

"I am glad to see you. I thought some guys were going to take me for a ride, sure."

In Brooklyn, a dead body is picked up on the steps of a residence, probably thrown out of an automobile.

The police say:

"A shake-down man, collector for gangsters, preying on bakers, very likely one of the crowd that killed Frankie Yale."

And that's that, as far as that criminal goes.

More interesting is the fact that the well-known gambler, Rothstein, whose murder puzzled New York's police and baffled the district attorney, was probably killed by a man who will never be convicted, for the reason that he himself has since been murdered by Rothstein's friends.

Even our able corporations might learn something about efficient organization from our able criminals.

William H. Mullins, son of the late James Mullins, and, like his father, among the most highly-respected men in Ohio, gives to Salem, O., a home for nurses. This gift, in memory of his mother, sets an excellent example to others that can afford to be generous.

Intelligent nursing is as important as the doctors' work and nurses should be made comfortable.

Young Americans, wondering "if there is still a chance," might study Mr. Mullins' start in business, on his own account. When very young he saw a locomotive on the Ft. Wayne road that had been in a smash-up. He bought it for its value as "scrap," set himself and two or three mechanics to work, restored and sold it for enough to start what became a successful business.

There are chances for those that have energy.

WEATHER

Rain or snow, probably mixed with sleet; much colder with cold wave late tonight; Sunday fair and colder; strong shifting winds becoming northwest and diminishing tonight.

High tide today, 1:42 a. m., 1:39 p. m.

Sun rises 7:10; sets 4:60.

WEYMOUTH FOR GREATER HUB PLAN

Head of the Selectmen Says Curley Proposal Would Help Town and City

With members of the Mayors' Club meeting in the Parker House for luncheon today, announcement was made in Weymouth that that town will fall in readily with Mayor Curley's proposed plan for a Metropolitan Boston.

"The people of Weymouth, I firmly believe, will be 100 per cent in favor of joining a metropolitan Boston," declared William A. Connell, chairman of the Weymouth board of selectmen.

"It would undoubtedly lead to substantial tax reduction here, and should the Elevated be extended to Weymouth the direct benefits would be enormous.

"Mayor Curley's proposed merger would lead directly to bigger and better business, here and elsewhere."

End Comes to Judge Lourie

Associate Justice David A Lourie, who rose from immigrant newsboy to the Superior Court bench of Massachusetts, died today at the age of 52 at his home, 38 Schuyler st., Roxbury.

Judge Lourie became ill a few days ago with a recurrence of a physical ailment, brought about by extremely arduous duties in the East Cambridge criminal court. At this session he disposed of four important cases in succession, including two murder trials.

Members of his family, including his son, George B. Lourie, assistant attorney-general, were at the bedside when death came.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Sunday in Temple Mishkan Tefila, at Seaver and Elm Hill sts., Roxbury. Rabbi Rubenovits will officiate. The burial will be in Dedham cemetery. The family requests that friends omit flowers.

Judge Lourie was prominently identified with nearly every leading Jewish movement of Boston and New England, and at one time was honorary vice president of the national Palestine fund.

His career began when he was brought to Boston as a boy by his Russian father. He started selling newspapers here at the age of six, although he spoke no English then.

On his first day, the immigrant boy made a profit of 24 cents. He soon learned newsboy business

Sue Brown's Tragedy But One of 'Crimes' by Rum Raiders

YOU may think the case of Mrs. Sue Brown, of Salinas, Cal., who was thrown into prison on the eve of motherhood by a zealous prohibition agent, is the only case, or an exceptional, extraordinary case wherein the attempted enforcement of the prohibition law took the life of an innocent person. But nearly a year before Mrs. Sue Brown, alone and unattended, gave birth to her dead child in a prison cell, the death of a woman, about to become a mother, who died at the hands of dry officials, was chronicled and printed in the Congressional Record.

"From the Charleston (W. Va.) Mail of January 11, 1927:

"Mrs. A. D. May of Nellis, Boone County, died at 11 o'clock this morning in the McMillan Hospital of a bullet wound inflicted Sunday night when officers served a liquor warrant upon Fleming Ramsey, a boarder at the May home.

"The officers, Sam Marrow, State prohibition agent, and Constable Clinton Carnes, of Peytona district, were arrested by order of the Boone County sheriff and placed in the county jail at Madison for hearing tomorrow afternoon before Magistrate C. F. Hager, of Scott district.

"Last night Mrs. May signed a statement declaring that Sam Marrow fired the shot that hit her. This statement was mailed to the sheriff's office at Madison last night. Dr. W. A. McMillan telephoned there yesterday after Mrs. May had told the story, and the men were arrested upon that information. The officers were held without bail until the hearing.

"Sunday night the officers appeared at the May residence and, producing a warrant, demanded the surrender of Ramsey. The man attempted to run from the house and escape. The officers then, according to Mr. May, fired several times.

"Ramsey stopped, and he was taken at once to a district justice of the peace and arraigned for being drunk. May obtained medical aid for his wife and brought her to Charleston, arriving here early yesterday morning.

"When arrested yesterday the officers said they did not know that Mrs. May had been shot during the raid.

"Mrs. May was to become a mother soon, it was said at the hospital today."

(There appears on Page 5 today the second story by Winifred Black, describing the great tragedy in the otherwise quiet home life of Sue Brown.)

Parental forgiveness and bon voyages were showered on them. She is the daughter of Gifford A. Cochran, millionaire horseman, and the Princess Celiodwig Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst.

MARSTERS GRID COACH AT B. U.

Al Marsters, Dartmouth backfield ace, was named today as coach of the Boston University football squad for next season at a meeting of the athletic association.

The athletic committee announced that it had voted with reluctance to change the football policy at the school and not to reappoint Coaches Regis Brown and E. N. Robinson.

Asst. Coach Hilary Mahaney, former Holy Cross star, will return as assistant to Marsters.

Tunney Out of Pain and He's Cheerful

New York, Jan. 18 (INS)—Gene Tunney is making rapid progress toward complete recovery. He is in Presbyterian Hospital, where he underwent an operation for a kidney ailment several days ago. "He is out of pain, very cheerful and has a normal temperature," said a bulletin by his physicians.

RUTH BRYAN IN FIGHT FOR SEAT

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Presenting her own case in the contest over her seat in the House, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Democrat, Florida, asserted before a House elections committee today that she had never renounced her citizenship to the United States even though married to an Englishman.

Mrs. Owen met her non-citizenship charge of William C. Lawson, Republican contestant for her seat in the House, with a dramatic recital of the hardships encountered over her citizenship status as a result of her marriage.

"No man ever was called before a committee such as this to explain his marriage," Mrs. Owen said.

"If there is any penalty for my marriage I bear it proudly. I ask nothing more than justice and expect nothing less from this committee."

SOCIETY COUPLE WED AND SAIL

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Jan. 18—Two months after they met they were wed.

Last night, two hours after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. George J. Atwell, Jr., were aboard the liner France, sailing on their honeymoon.

Parental forgiveness and bon voyages were showered after them.

The bride is the former Miss Jean Cochran, daughter of Gifford A. Cochran, millionaire horseman, and the Princess Chlodwig Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst of Park ave.

The bridegroom, educated at Oxford University, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Atwell. His father is president of the National Democratic Club.

Miss Cochran and her devoted courtier wended their way quietly to St. Patrick's Cathedral about 6 p. m. Yesterday. They intended to keep their wedding secret. They engaged passage and got their passports.

But somehow Mr. Atwell became aware of the nuptials in his household, and so did all the other kin.

Mrs. Atwell, Jr., is a niece of the late Alexander Smith Cochran and a granddaughter of the James Madison Taylors of Philadelphia. Her two brothers are Gifford A. Cochran, Jr., and Drayton Cochran.

TRIO, IDENTIFIED AS ICE BOX BANDITS, ESCAPE AFTER BATTLE

Hartford, Ct., Jan. 18 (AP)—Two men, definitely identified as Roland Lalone and Watson Moulthorpe, who escaped from Wethersfield State Prison two weeks ago today, shot two Jacksonville, Florida, police detectives who tried to arrest them in that city last night, according to word received at the prison this afternoon.

A third member of the trio whom the detectives tried to arrest is thought to be Leo Landry, who escaped with Lalone and Moulthorpe. The sedan which was stolen in Holyoke December 29 was found abandoned in the Florida city by the police, and is deemed conclusive evidence by prison officials that the convicts were responsible for the shooting.

One of the detectives is believed dying of his wounds, while the other is expected to recover.

The two detectives, who identified Lalone and Moulthorpe from the circulars broadcast in connection with their sensational break from prison, attempted to question them in connection with a series of burglaries in Jacksonville when the bandits opened fire.

Moulthorpe's mother is known to be living in Florida.

Lalone, the Worcester "icebox" bandit, was serving life imprisonment at Wethersfield for the murder of a State trooper at Pomfret, Ct. Landry, a resident of Revere, was serving a short term for burglary and Moulthorpe was sentenced to more than 20 years for robbery with force.

WESTERN PART OF STATE TIED UP BY SLEET

As rain deluged the seacoast of New England today, one of the worst sleet and ice storms of the winter raged in western Massachusetts, crippling traffic.

Trolley service in Springfield became disorganized when snow turned to rain and froze as it fell. Iced wires and rails caused an abandonment of schedules. Motorists proceeded with difficulty. There was much skidding.

On the wings of easterly gales all New England will be hit hard later today by sleet and snow, followed by a cold wave tonight that will drop the temperature in Boston and vicinity to 10 above, according to the official forecast.

Between four and five inches of snow was reported at noon today in the cities and towns three to which the Mohawk trail and Jacob's Ladder routes pass.

A disturbance, central near Cape Hatteras this morning, was moving rapidly northeastward with increasing intensity and will be attended by easterly gales this evening when it reaches the New England coast, according to prediction. This disturbance caused a display of northeast storm warnings along the entire New England coast from Block Island, R. I., to Eastport, Me., and northwest storm warnings from Block Island to Cape Hatteras.

Warnings of the storm were flashed to small craft at sea and small Coast Guard patrol boats were ordered to seek safe anchorage to ride out the blow.

The cold which is also sweeping down on New England from the Ohio valley is an offshoot of the intensely cold wave that has caused suffering in the mid-West.

The official forecast for Boston and vicinity: Rain or snow, probably mixed with sleet this afternoon and early tonight; much colder with cold wave late tonight; Sunday fair and colder; strong shifting winds becoming northwest and diminishing tonight. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 10 above.

Snow Prankish Boston's weather is may be noted from the fact that the temperature jumped 10 degrees in one hour. A rise of 20 degrees ister, calling on Prime Minister Macdonald this forenoon, said Italy would strive not only for naval limitation, but reduction.

The Americans' visit developed into something more than a social call, as it bored for no knee and a half, during which the entire American delegation for the first time conferred with the entire British delegation.

ALL DELEGATES BUSY.

Meanwhile the preparations of the other delegations, both through discussions among themselves and conversation with other delegates, moved with a rapidity which filled the entire day.

The principle of duties in the formal rush of preparations became so heavy that most of the official business was conducted week-end plans previously made.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald abandoned a plan to spend Sunday resting in anticipation of the double burden of the naval conference and parliament both opening on the same day.

The hereditary of the conference will be as well as to Downing St., showed yesterday in the work of organizations went on rapidly for the opening meeting.

DIRECTS DISPATCHES.

It was stated authoritatively that the 4-by-4-division dispatches along at Downing at, today were entirely general in their entire technical problems not being touched upon. The British delegation was concerned with the obstacles which must be met by the conference in its proceedings.

All the delegates past the afternoon resting and preparing for the arrival of Premier Tardieu invited all to dine at the embassy this evening.

A large crowd watched the arrival and departure of the American delegation at the station. Premier Tardieu maintained a friendly attitude with an elaborate talking garden pavilion and rushing across the road, when the delegates emerged, and got in with his equerries.

Tardieu had been stationed around the country for the French minister's residence, but they had no difficulty and entered during the proceedings.

Premier Tardieu of London for his meeting with Premier Macdonald shortly after luncheon. Mrs. Simson having already paid a visit during the morning. They will entertain informally this evening.

At luncheon tomorrow, when, Premier Tardieu will be the guest of honor, the French, Italian and American advisors will be among the guests. Simson will come in from the country during the afternoon tomorrow to confer with Premier Tardieu at the French embassy.

WOMAN DONOR COMMENDS TROY FUND

Natick Store Workers Send $25; Tickets on Sale for Benefit Performance

Only one day sit—yet the fund being raised for the family of Special Officer James J. Troy, murdered by a gunman in the South End, is off to a good start.

The first day's subscriptions alone total of $99 for the fund being raised by Joseph W. Bennett, with Joseph L. McNamara of the South Boston branch of the Federated National Bank as treasurer.

First thicker of South Boston contributed $25, Richard C. Kirby, head of the East Boston Improvement Association, gave $25; F. C. Hayes, assistant superintendent of Atlantic & Pacific Stores in Natick, collected $25 among Natick employes.

From Charles C. Gilbert of Milton came $10, and other contributions included $5 from Frances Leary of Chestnut Hill, $2 from Mrs. J. H. Littleton of West Roxbury, and 21 each from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Milford; Frank Lacerbo, W. L. Carr, Cos of Brookline, E. R. H. of South Boston and Mrs. Thompson of Revere.

Mrs. Grant Walker, 160 Beacon st., sent a check for $40 in payment for four $10 seats for the benefit performance to be given by Frances Tenney Dennen in "Peg o' My Heart" Monday night as the third offering of the Boston Theatre Guild.

The Boston Victor Herbert fraternal committee was represented at a conference with Superintendent Hultman by Thomas Lynch, who said the benefit was developed.

Plans for the all-star theatrical performances at midnight next Thursday in the Boston Opera House, Tremont st., were announced by Lynch. The first 200 seats for the tickets were placed on sale, he said.

It is also planned to have a Troy night at the Metropolitan and the Broadway Theatre, South Boston, on dates to be announced later, he undoubtedly will be arranged and will help to swell the fund.

Checks for the fund may be sent either to Joseph L. McNamara, Federal National Bank, South Boston, or to Joseph W. Bennett, 150 Orkney rd., Brookline.

He obtained a grassmer school education and later worked his way through Boston University Law School. He graduated with honors. He was admitted to the bar in 1902.

After practising law for a score of years, Judge Lourie was appointed to the Associate Judgeship of the Boston Municipal court in 1925, by Governor Channing Cox. This same chief executive a few years later promoted him to the Superior Court.

During his riveting worker, Judge Lourie is believed to have had to have over-taxed his constitution. He was prostrated at his home through cause piled up. Three years ago he was stricken with pneumonia and was confined to his bed for several weeks.

He also found time for participation in many fraternal, religious and fraternal activities. He was a member of the Boston Bar Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Boston City Club, the Boston Athletic Association, the Massachusetts Jewish Historical Society and the Masonic order.

Judge Lourie was a trustee of the Temple Israel, Boston, and of the Beth Israel Hospital. He was president of the Home for Jewish Children, Roxbury, and was for many years a committee of the Federated Jewish Charities. He was also a member of the Free Sons of Israel, counsel of the Boston Lodge of Elks and a former grand lecturer and director of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society.

He was a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and had been prominent in the Boston Athletic Association and Tedesco Country Club.

In 1903 Judge Lourie married Anna Florence of Hartford, Conn. They had four children.

Justice Lourie was the first man of Jewish faith to be appointed to the municipal bench in Massachusetts.

NEUMAN FIGHTS EXTRADITION TO BAY STATE

Gov. Fisher Gets Papers From Allen and a Date for Hearing Is Set

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 18 (AP)—A request for the extradition of Mrs. Evelyn Neuman, held in custody here from Philadelphia, was received today by Gov. Fisher from Gov. Allen of Massachusetts.

The papers said Neuman is wanted in Boston in connection with the slaying of Samuel Rubenstein in a Boston hotel several months ago. Neuman, the object of a nation-wide search since the killing of Rubenstein was recently wounded by Philadelphia gunmen in their hideout in that city. He is under injury and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital there for treatment.

Extradition of Neuman has been brought against the extradition by Attorney Benjamin A. Dilks, who gave testimony in the Rubenstein investigation, which, it was charged, might have incriminated their friend, Harry Bachik.

The cold air privation stalked over the Southwest today as a blizzard swept over the mountain and Rocky Mountain States swept out over the Plains. At Amarillo, Tex., it was 10 below. It is the coldest temperature records of a decade fall.

Telegraph and telephone wires were down in many of the southwestern States, and the storm was the greatest in the Texas Panhandle since the blizzard of 1911. Drifts of snow drifts at various places reached 10 feet, making travel impassable in many sections.

Cold weather was general in the Middle West. Zero was expected. Texas was particularly hard hit by the cold wave. Many cold which seldom visits that section of the country.

Weymouth in Favor of Greater Boston Plan

ber of the members refused to discuss the plan until it was brought up officially, but a few who permitted themselves to be drawn up here expressed opposition. Those were:

MAYOR GRIFFIN, Malden: Malden is a conservative city. I am not in favor of the plan at present. I am not familiar with it. The reason Malden people would oppose the plan is because it is largely a residential city and we have a lot of the residents that petitioned in the cities and towns.

The statement followed the assertion of one of the members that petitioners in the cities and towns would favor annexation.

MAYOR WHELAN, Somerville: I am not in favor of the plan. The city is operated in a move to help Boston, and would not give up its identity.

TAYOR MURPHY, Somerville,—I have considered the plan before, but have never taken it up in my city. I am partly in accord with Mayor Curley's plan, but it should be submitted to the voters separately. I am strongly opposed to any system which requires borrowing money. Furthermore, Somerville would want to retain its identity. I am not in favor of the plan.

MAYOR CURLEY: Mayor Curley believes there is any particular advantage in Mayor Curley's plan. The essential features of the Greater Boston plan is progress sewers and water. These are the two principal items in the Metropolitan District Commission. Here we have state backing and the money is available to build at a lower rate than can a city. The history of all cities shows graft and corruption. Mayor Curley's plan would be undoubtedly the quickest way to get closer to the people and as a result there is less graft. I believe, however, that a federation of cities would not be a solution. Something like the plan I have suggested is the only solution. The Boston League of Republican Clubs.

Mayor Curley had revealed his plan to the Boston League of Republican Clubs.

PARTY GAINING, SAYS RASKOB

Miami, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP)—Quiet work on the rank and file of the United States, is the method being employed by the Democratic party throughout the United States, John J. Raskob, national committee chairman, said here.

Raskob, in addressing a general banquet of Democrats here, said Republicans and work in behalf of Democratic candidates, but on a steady, unhampered basis.

Quiet also is obvious differences of opinion among the Democratic leaders, Raskob explained. This was not because of a lack of desire to take up the issues of the moment, but because they have been so busy entertaining visitors.

"The time is coming, in a short while, when we must take positive action on the issues of the day, when a high standard of living is maintained and a high wage scale prevails we must have fair protection for our industries," Raskob declared. "We must have fair protection for our industries and be prepared to meet competition successfully."

Mr. Raskob said he expected to remain in Florida until about March 1, when he will headquarter in Palm Beach.

Hindenburg Pays Honor to Schurman

Berlin, Jan. 18 (AP)—Jacob Gould Schurman, retiring American Ambassador, today was received by President von Hindenburg and presented the Order of the Eagle. The President paid warm tribute to the Ambassador, saying: "You helped to maintain and strengthen the cordial relations between Germany and the United States."

Dr. Schurman, replying in German, said he had contributed to the restoration and protection of "cordial friendly relations" had been a privilege and an honor he would always regard as the highest in his life.

U. S. TYPISTS AMAZE LONDON

London, Jan. 18 (AP)—The furcoats, silk stockings, cosmetics and general appearance of the typists who are the attendants in the motion to the naval parley are causing London comment.

A girl reporter writes in the Daily Express that the American girls are less conventional and well groomed, but they still have their independence.

Every American typist she saw on the streets was chewing gum, and she has become nearly as much a part of the girls if she hoped to find a husband in England.

"I hear the Prince of Wales is fond of them," the girl replied.

Harry Cooper, Golf Star, to Take Bride

Los Angeles, Jan. 18 (AP)—Harry Cooper, golf star, and Miss Emma Buchanan, Los Angeles society girl, announced today that they married next Tuesday. Cooper is a member of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and Miss Buchanan is a member of the Agua Caliente, Mexico, open golf tournament, during which she will be able to participate in that event without postponing the wedding date.

Cooper and Miss Buchanan met during the winter when she was attending champion in the $10,000 Los Angeles Invitation.

Insurmountable Barriers Foreseen by U. S. Group

By GEORGE R. HOLMES, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Boston, Jan. 18 (1928)—That final day in London has convinced the American delegates to the five-power naval conference that there are more than the difficulties in the way to anything like complete agreement between strong and cautious navies are virtually insurmountable.

Japan's demand for a 70 per cent maximum cruiser strength with Great Britain and America, France's suspicious attitude and demand for parity with France, coupled with numerous kinks in the Italian attitude, and the doubt with regard to capital ships and cruisers all combine to impress the American with the absolute necessity of the understanding.

NOT RESULTS LIMITED.

Most of the American delegates here are convinced that the results will probably be limited to an extension of the existing 5-5-3 building holiday which will enable the British and American governments to scrap three-quarters of a billion dollars each would have spent in the next five years under the terms of the Washington treaty.

It can be stated most positively that the American position is based on the principle of parity in which capital ships which each side will be advanced by France and Italy number of which can afford them.

Reflecting the attitude of the American general board, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur has declared himself emphatically as to the "interests of the sea" and as the "core of international law."

'SYMPATHETIC ATTITUDE.'

In the meantime the American delegates are prepared to examine with sympathetic attitude any proposals that may come for ship and gun calibers.

There was frequent switch the Americans could with all La Guardia Airport in Flushing Bay, and Floyd Bennett Field, on Barren Island, both of which are municipally owned.

Mayor Walker, who has been in Florida for the past week, is expected to return to the city tomorrow.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 18 (AP)—"The minister of defense is planning an increase in the national defense budget, which is considered a technical disarmament negotiations hitherto had had little results and had tended to increase armaments, rather than to decrease them.

His statement was in reply to an attack by Social Democrats on the minister's budget proposal.

HOUSE VOTES TO KEEP POISON IN ALCOHOL

Action Taken After Maryland Soldan Says Thousands Are Killed Yearly

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Stopping only long enough to adjourn overnight, action today in the House that the use by the government of poison in industrial alcohol was causing the death of "several thousand persons a year."

The House later rejected, 107 to 97, an amendment to the Treasury-Postoffice supply bill to prohibit the placing of poison in industrial alcohol, and it goes to the senate approved.

The Maryland representative accused the Treasury department of recently had been using wood alcohol in the industrial alcohol.

"This is not a question of whether you believe in prohibition," he said. "Whether you favor it or not, Government should approve the killing of citizens."

Interruption by Representative Beck, Republican, Pennsylvania, led him if he did not believe that an officer was acting within the law in the case of a person arrested effort to capture a law violator, he should be impeached by Congress.

"I cannot bring myself to a position where I would say that a man just because he had a bottle of liquor."

The Republican steering committee today decided to recommend to the House that Representative Hare, Republican, South Carolina, be appointed to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization, to succeed Representative Hudson, Republican, Michigan, resigned.

The committee also decided to fill the vacancy on the Committee on Rules by the appointment of Representative Snell, Republican, New York.

OIL MAN IN TRAP IN FRANCE

Cannot Leave for Any Other Place and Dares Not Sail for Home

Cannes, France, Jan. 18 (AP)—A sick, broken old man sits in the Hotel Cecil here, a prisoner of fate as much as the prisoner of the Statue of Liberty and the Kansas and Oklahoma oil fields which produced his fortune.

He is James O'Neil, O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil & Gas Company, and a director of the Santa Fe Railroad. He and Henry M. Blackmer, who was president of the Midwest Refining Company, fled from the United States in 1926 when they were threatened with the Teapot Dome investigation, which, it was charged, might have incriminated their friend, Harry Bachik.

WANTS TO COME HOME

O'Neil, who has evaded process servers who sought to subpoena him took to the United States since 1926, to go American citizen, and his counsel pleaded does not enable him to leave the country. He pleaded for the United States to return to the United States unless broken complaints complications for him.

He is quite ill, of heart trouble, and he wants to go back home. Numerous lawyers are making inquiries on his behalf as to just what will happen should he set foot on American soil. His physician advises against a voyage.

Mrs. O'Neil, the other alien in custody, has recovered two years ago on train between Boston and Montreal, and has been in poor health since.

3 WEDDINGS ON CALENDAR TODAY

THREE WEDDINGS OF outstanding interest to Boston society are taking place in as many cities today. The spotlight of international attention is focused on the nuptials of Miss Rachel Derby Smith of Commonwealth ave. and Count Friederich Frans Grote of Mecklenburg, Germany, son of Count Otto Grote and Countess Alice of Territet, Switzerland. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Park and the Rev. Benjamin Washburn, is being solemnized in the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel of Emmanuel Church at 12:30 o'clock and is being followed by a reception at the Algonquin club, at which the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pickering Smith, are to be the hosts. The only bridal attendant is to be the bridegroom's sister, Countess Zia Grote of Territet. Count Hubert Blucher of Germany has come over six thousand miles from Edfu, upper Egypt, to be Count Friederich's best man. Count Carlos Puckler of Berlin, George B. Henderson of Boston, Philip R. Ropp of Hewlett, L. I., and James F. Clark of New York are the ushers.

THE BRIDE IS WEARING diamonds and pearls, the Grote family heirlooms, which have been sent over on the S. S. Aquitania especially for this occasion. Her gown is fashioned in ivory satin in the princess style with tight sleeves and a long court train of old family lace. Her golden head is to be crowned with a Juliet cap of pearls and brilliants. Her slippers are of ornamented satin with diamond bow knots. With this exquisite costume she is to carry a few sprays of Easter lilies. The bouquet the maid of honor is carrying with her charming frock is of mixed flowers—buddleia, iris, poppies and others. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Smith is being attired in a dress of orchid colored crepe Elizabeth, embroidered with cut work of violet velvet. Her hat and shoes are of a similar shade. Among those coming from out of town to attend this function are Mr. and Mrs. William P. Mason of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Tilney of Plainfield, N. J., William A. Carrygnes of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Elizabeth Tuttle of New York.

MISS SMITH RECEIVED HER education at Miss May's school in Boston and Miss Wright's school in Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. She made her debut here and is a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club. Last year she travelled extensively abroad. The newlyweds will sail for Europe from aboard the S. S. Bremen February 1. They are to make their home at Varchentin, Mecklenburg, Germany.

THIS AFTERNOON IN THE Chantry of St. Thomas' Church, New York city, Miss Mary Callendar Ames, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames of North Easton, and Fifth ave., New York, is to become the bride of Howard Gardiner Cushing. Miss Ames, who made her debut in New York and Boston and was frequently feted during the season of 1926-27, is a member of the Junior League and the Vincent Club. The announcement of the engagement was made about a year ago, but in April it was made known that by mutual consent the engagement had been broken. Since then there has been no formal announcement of its renewal. It is the mother of the bride-to-be, is the former Miss Edith Cryder, daughter of the Duncan Cryders and one of the triplets noted for their beauty, the others being Mrs. William Woodward and Mrs. Arthur A. Fowler.

MR. CUSHING RECEIVED his degree at Harvard in 1928. His clubs include the A. D. and the Knickerbocker and Harvard Clubs of New York. He is the son of Mrs. J. Denison Sawyer (formerly Ethel Cochran of Boston) of New York and Newport and the late Howard G. Cushing, noted artist. Mrs. George C. Clark, jr. (Lily Cushing), is his sister and Alexander C. Cushing is his brother. Others of Mr. Cushing's relatives are Mrs. George Richmond Fearing of Beacon st., Mrs. Lindley Loring of "Sunrise Farm," Westwood, Mrs. F. Murray Forbes of "Deerie" Wellesley, F. Dougal Cochrane, James Sullivan Cochrane, and Grafton D. Cushing of Boston.

IN CLEVELAND AT THE residence of her mother, Mrs. Philip Withington, Mrs. Anne W. Cashman is to wed Henry Livingston Rowe of Brookline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Rowe, at an Episcopal ceremony at 6:30 o'clock this evening. A prenuptial breakfast takes place at one o'clock at the Hunt Club, following which the wedding service those taking part are invited to a dinner at the Wade Park Manor Lafayette, the evening's reception and dance are to take place. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Elenor Livingston Rowe, is sub debutante, accompanied her parents to Cleveland.

MRS. CASHMAN'S DRESS IS to be of eggshell satin, trimmed with lace and her bouquet is to be of orchids and valley lilies. Miss Marguerite Withington, maid of honor, is to be frocked in a smart dahlia crepe. Mrs. Withington is to be gowned in black lace. Mrs. Cashman's two other sisters, Mrs. Hyland K. Hall and Miss Betty Cunningham, will be gowned in sherry red chiffon and nile green lace respectively, the one wearing gardenias, the other rosebuds. Mr. Rowe, whose maternal grandmother is Mrs. Robert E. Livingston of 5th ave., New York, and whose paternal grandfather is Henry Sherburne Rowe of Commonwealth ave., is to have William Martin at his best man and is to usher Sherman Hoyt, Tudor Shipkins of New York, Horatio Brewster, Dudley R. Howe, William Goddard, Robert Sloan and Philip Cuniff. The engagement was announced this fall.

FROM MISS MARY O. PORter of River st., comes as usual the debutante calendar for the coming month. The parties are few and far between. The first one is the dance which Mrs. Curtis Guild is giving to present her niece, Miss Laetitia Orlandini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vittorio Orlandini of Marlborough st. The affair is to take place at the Ritz-Carlton. The following day Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Strickland of Dudley st., Brookline, are introducing their daughter, Miss Eleanor Strickland, at a tea with dancing at the Brookline Country Club. Not another party is scheduled during a week or more following this, but on the 19th, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lang of Bay State rd. are to give a "coming out" dance for their daughter, Miss Margaret Lang. Miss Harriet Guild of Arlington st. is to be feted by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Guild, at a dance at the Ritz-Carlton February 27. The parties scheduled by Mrs. John M. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brewer have been cancelled.

A TRACTIVELY GOWNED in tangerine crepe de chine, Mrs. Daniel Simonds 2nd (Elisabeth Sprague) received at the first of the Junior League supper dances last night. The Copley Plaza ballroom was gay with smartly frocked post-debs and youthful matrons, their costumes completed by the fashionable long white gloves. Lace evening creations predominated. Miss Marjorie Morrill, who entertained guests at dinner preceding the dance, was smartly attired in black net. Black was also worn by Mrs. Gordon Abbott, jr., and Miss Eloise Weld. Miss Helen Seymour was charmingly dressed in white lace, Miss Virginia Roberts in pink tulle, lovely Mrs. Daniel Frost Comstock in jade green, and Miss Katharine Hamlin in dark blue lace. Mrs. Henry C. Everett, jr., and Mrs. Sally Parker were frocked in white, Mrs. Everett Morss, jr., and her sister, Miss Margaret Wentworth, were both clad in eggshell satin. Mrs. Benjamin G. Thornaike was gowned in blue crepe de chine, Miss Susan Detty in black, Miss Laura Dupee in blue satin, combined with pink, and her sister, Miss Clara Dupee, in a black tulle with a brocaded bodice.

TODAY'S BRIDE, MISS RACHEL SMITH had on a charming blue satin dress. Mrs. William Cox (Jessie Bancroft), who serves on the committee, was wearing a gray lace creation. Miss Polly Winslow was attired in a gown of white tulle. Miss Nancy Morison and Miss Louise Batchelder were clad in taffeta dresses, the one of green, the other gray. Red lace costumes were chosen by Miss Mary Hammond and Miss Dorothea Frothingham on this occasion.

MRS. GEORGE SALTONstall WEST of Chestnut Hill is giving a luncheon to about 40 tomorrow noon in honor of Miss Helen Warren, debutante daughter of Mrs. Samuel Dennis Warren of Marlborough st. Miss Anna Tuckerman, Miss Nancy Hallowell, Miss Frances Burnett, Miss Mary Lovering, Miss Elizabeth Whitenall and Miss Ethel Grew will attend this informal luncheon, as will also their escorts and Mr. and Mrs. Westcott married set. Miss Warren is wearing a green sport dress.

MRS. FREDERICK P. BAGley will give a children's party this afternoon at her home on Beacon st. for her granddaughter, Grace Fredericka Reed. "The Four Bears," a play by the Jean I. Mardin Marionettes, will be given by Miss Mardin, assisted by Mrs. Bagley's grandson, Frederick Myers.

JEWISH JUNIORS LAUNCH DRIVE FOR CHARITY FUND

Tomorrow at the home of Miss Betty Gorfinkle, 141 Englewood ave., Brookline, members of the Little Lifesavers Committe of the Junior Community Chest, will meet and outline plans to obtain 2000 names of children so that $2000 may be added to the contribution of the Jewish juniors of the city to the Associated Jewish Philanthropies.

Little Lifesavers, on whose heads he price of charity for others will be placed.

Little nieces ,nephews, cousins, whose names will make cash for the $10,000 gift that the Jewish juniors of the city have pledged to the $900,000 campaign launched recently by the Associated Jewish Philanthropies.

The Junior Community Chest, a unit of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies, is composed of representative Jewish young men and women of the city, whose charity activities of the past have placed them in the front line of service and response.

When Louis E. Kirstein sounded the need for funds with which to carry on the Jewish charities of the city, the Jewish youths were the first to respond.

The ingenious plan to solicit names of little boys and girls, at a dollar per head, met the instantaneous approval and its supporters are positive of success.

At 2:30 o'clock the meeting will be called to order and the roll call of Little Lifesavers read. To date the following are happy to have given their bit to charity: Richard Alan Bush, Ruth Gloria Schwartz, Arthur Harold Filin, Daniel Bernard Miller, Charles David Miller, Trudy Ann Robbins, Clair Schindler, Richard Brooker, Frances Levin, Arthur C. Dreshfield, jr., Jerome Cooper, Murray Cooper, Hilda Harriet Cooper, Irving Bramberg, Alvan Myron Levy, Pauline Norma Levy, Marcia Krafsur and Barbara Krafsur.

There are only three more weeks to go for the final windup of the Little Lifesavers Campaign, and Neil Bopkin and Goldie Kopans are anxious to enscroll in the golden book of goodness the names of other youngsters who some day will cherish the deed.

Chief among the lifesavers are Sadie Greenblatt, Cecile Miller, Nell Mannos, Lillian Cooper, Samuel Thorner, Mary Paretsky, Beatrice Brodie, Anna Hola, Betty Gorfinkle, Frank Julius, Ada Ellis, Bertha Kalis, Elizabeth Conviser, Nan Horwitch, Ethyl Goldberger, Gertrude Appleton, Goldie Kopans, Hazel Hutchman, William Kopans, Martha Heller, Mae Golden, Jean Bluestone, Edith Frieman, Margaret Fuller, Esther Ellis, Ben Brooker, Lillian Zalkind, Betty Sakind, Jack Sakind, Joe Sakind, Rita Aronson and Sadie Jacobs.

The community is urged to send in the names of children whom they wish to see enlisted in the ranks of charity, accompanied by one dollar, to the Associated Jewish Philanthropies. It is a worthwhile activity and one which will please them.

BRIGHTHELMSTONE CLUB

Reciprocity is another name for service. Two hundred members of the club returned the compliment of an entertainment and tea given in honor of William H. Murphy, manager of the Egyptian Theater, Brighton, and held in his new show place, because the gentleman helped the women in their recent theatrical venture, which turned out so successfully.

Personal thanks were extended to Murphy and Kenneth Fleming, social manager. Mrs. Stewart A. Colpitts, president, and Mrs. Ainsley C. Armstrong, editor of the club paper, presided at the tea table, in the foyer of the theater.

Mrs. William J. McDonald, state Federation sixth district director, and former president of the Brighthelmstone Club, and Mrs. Thomas J. Rees, director of the fourth district, were special guests of the occasion.

Mrs. Henry W. Inman, director and chairman of the committee in charge of the theater party, was hostess and master of ceremonies. She introduced as speakers Mrs. Colpitts, Mrs. E. Mark Sullivan, Mrs. Carrie Farrer, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Fleming and Harry Wasserman of the Netoco organization.

BOSTON CITY FEDERATION

Under the auspices of the Legislative Committee, Mrs. William S. Mitchell, chairman, the regular meeting of the Federation, at the Young Women's Christian Association, was devoted to discussion of the Children's Commission, the bill to regulate overnight camps and the old age security-pension bill.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Pigeon, of the Boston School Committee, who was to have been a guest, was unable to be present, owing to illness in the family.

Theodore Lothrop, chairman of the special commission on laws relative to children, asked for the continued support, sympathy, interest, encouragement and suggestions of the clubwomen when the bills are presented.

Samuel L. Thompson, president of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce, urged the need for the regulation of overnight tourist camps and private home accommodations. He said the existing laws were rather loose and called for more rigid supervision.

The bill, he said, would require, the names of tourists stopping over, the automobile registration number, and the inspection of premises by the state board of health before the granting of licenses. He said that the whole-hearted support of Dr. George E. Bigelow, the health commissioner, was assured.

Old age, that time in life when security means as much, was described by Dr. Lucille Eaves, director of the research department of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, in her outline of the recent old age pension bill filed at the State House and in the drafting of which she had a hand.

In the survey made by her groups of students it was ascertained that the City of Boston is somewhat worse as to its old age dependents, than the suburban and rural communities. In the outlying districts they were somewhat better off.

She said the bill was more important to women for two-thirds of those needing aid in the declining years, were women.

Of this number 60 per cent were housewives, who couldn't be expected to meet the situation adequately.

"Give the relief in a kindly manner. It is hard for old people especially to admit they have to be assisted financially. Let them get some help cheerfully and without the usual stigma, Dr. Eaves urged.

"If they have property let them keep it. Let them live in their own homes. Whatever is given to them in the old age pension will be returned to the estate when their estate is redeemed after death. It is considered that children who do not contribute to old age fund to care for aged parents, should not be entitled to property after death. Hence, the moneys the State will be reimbursed for the relief."

Senator Joseph R. Cotton agreed with many of the points outlined in the bill but opposed the establishment of an age limit. He held that there were many who at 50, 55 and 60 needed relief, too.

He said that Massachusetts paid more per capita for welfare work than any other State in the country. He urged the good points of the old age pension bill be incorporated in the welfare laws already on the statute books.

Mrs. Carl L. Watson, president of the City Federation, presiding, thanked the speakers and urged the clubwomen to take back the messages of the various addresses to their clubs for consideration and study.

The community service committees will have charge of the program at the next meeting, to take place at the Y the third Friday in February.

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION

A supper meeting of the evening legislative committees of the Massachusetts section, woman's department, is to take place next Monday at 6:30 p. m. in the Copley-Plaza. The various bills to be studied this year will be presented by speakers, Mrs. Joseph W. Attwill, chairman of the committee, announces.

WOMEN MUSICIANS' ASSOCIATION

Mrs. William J. McDonald, sixth district director of the State Federation, was the special guest at the meeting of this group, held at the League House, 1 Huntington st., at which Mrs. Amy Young Burns, State Federation music chairman, presided in analysis of Wagner's opera, "Die Walkure" with musical illustrations.

Mrs. Ellen Hennessy Newman, a past president, was the presiding hostess. Plans are now being formulated for a luncheon, bridge and musicel in March, and a fashion show in April, the proceeds of these affairs to go to the philanthropy fund, out of which help is given the unfortunate member musicians.

DORCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

At a meeting of the executive board of the club it was voted to endorse the foundation fund and respond with the full quota.

A new class in oriental rugs is planned for Monday morning at 9 o'clock in charge of Mrs. Veator Martin and Mrs. Arthur Benson. The next day Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, first vice-president of the general federation, will deliver her current events lecture.

Frocks With Matching Jackets Milady's Vogue for Spring and Summer

ONE-PIECE and two-piece frocks, with matching jackets, have delightful interpretations in the new clothes for spring and summer, to be packed for Southern wearing, or purchased by the stay-at-home, if they prove too alluring to pass by—as indeed they may. The semi-formal, dress-maker-type suit, with its new lines and bows, youthfulness and femininity is aptly illustrated by the costume pictured here.

It is of silk in chartreuse color, one of the very smart, new greens. The skirt has circular side sections, narrowed and fitted at the top by vertical tucks. The over-blouse is shaped by shirring over the hips, accentuating the bolero line above. Groups of shirring in front are caught by two bows, powder blue in color. The blouse has small cap sleeves. The jacket is embroidered in shades of powder blue, and finished by two throw scarfs, one green and one powder blue. The color combination of chartreuse green and blue rivals the early spring crocus in charm.

The hat topping the delightful outfit is of felt in chartreuse, the crown shirred on the side, and completed by a two-inch flange of fine horse-hair braid, brown in tone.

The jacket of this suit might be worn with a blue frock matching one of the embroidery shades —for spring counsels jackets to match your frocks. Many of the new jackets are fitted or semi-belted and all of them must be definitely a part of the costume, related to dress by trimming, style details, color or fabric. Frocks of every type wear jackets.

Sleeveless sports frocks are frequently accompanied by matching jackets. Afternoon frocks wear matching coats or jackets of a companion print. The ensemble seen in greatest numbers at the Southern resorts will probably be the one combining dress and short coat.

Femininity is going to continue to be good fashion, so that skirts will have fullness gained by circular cutting, godets and gores. Unpressed box pleats are a new note seen in resort fashions.

Suits are outstandingly important for spring, and an excellent first investment for chic and wearability. If you are buying a suit in the near future you will be glad of these two notes—the norfolk and the waistline. Short sleeves are very smart in blouses —elbow length or small cap sleeves although, of course, sleeves to the wrist continue to hold sway.

Necklines and fabrics have far greater variety than we have previously seen in blouses. So whether or not you remember the shirtwaist of the gay nineties with its flaring shoulders and wasp waist, you will find the skirt and tuck-in blouse costume of today a vast improvement over the earlier version. There are a number of smart frocks for spring that are adopting the tuck-in theme with skirt of one fabric and blouse of another.

Often the blouse wears a bit of applique in the fabric of the skirt. Sometimes the blouse differs from the skirt in color alone. And spring colors are to be subdued. Those in vogue will be bright accents, but the foundation colors must be slightly dulled.

This is only natural since our reversal to a quaintly demure fashion ago. Aside from this edict, however, fashion leaves the matter of choosing colors to the individual taste. Green is coming in for more prominence than it has in the past. Blue is perennially good. Henna colors are expected to be excellent.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

While correct bidding is important, to be sure to arrive at the best bid of the two hands for game or contract, correct play is equally important, to be sure to make such game or contract if in the hand. I don't care how well a player may bid, he must also play well to be ranked as an all around player. It is for this reason that I stress good play as much as I do good bidding.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South and West passing, North bids one Spade. East passing, South bids with two Diamonds, holding the bare requirements for such denial. West passing, North rebids his Spades which concludes the bidding.

When the two hands of bidder and partner are in plain sight, as is the case where the four hands are given, denials and re-bids look unnecessary.

The point of the denial bid is of course to afford North a second opportunity to bid in case he may desire to show a second suit with some such holding as:

Spades, A K x x x; Hearts, A K x x x; Diamonds, x; Clubs, x x

with which a game could be made at hearts and no game at Spades; or with say

Spades, A Q 10 x x; Hearts, A 10 x; Diamonds; K x; Clubs, K J x

with which a game at No Trumps is the more likely.

Contract: South and West passing, North bids his Spades originally, his high card and probable trick strength warranting such bid. East passing, South takes out with three Diamonds, a take out that is of little or no help to North who holds but a singleton of that suit.

West passing, North cuts the bidding short by going to four Spades preferring the risk of failure to make such contract than the risk of failure to bid for game if in the hand.

Salient Points of Play

East leads the Queen of Hearts. The Dummy going down, North sees clearly that, with the Ace of Hearts driven out, the moment the adversaries are in with the Ace of Clubs they will make three Heart tricks. If he also loses a Spade trick, then game cannot be made. His best chance then is that therefore would seem to be lead out his Ace and King of Spades. If the Queen drops there will then exist no need of trying the Diamond finesse; if the Queen does not drop, then the only remaining chance is the Diamond finesse even though an extra trick will be lost should the finesse fail.

So considered, West leads out his two high Spades, the Queen not dropping, she leads his five of Diamonds and finesses the Queen. The thrill of this play, whether it wins or loses, is well worth the try. The Diamond finesse winning, Declarer make his contract losing one Heart, one Spade and a Club trick.

Mr. Whitehead will answer one question at a time concerning your bridge problems. Write to him, care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DRY RAID VICTIM'S BABE BORN ALONE AT NIGHT IN PRISON CELL

SUE BROWN'S FOLKS VISIT PRISON, PLAN REDRESS

By WINIFRED BLACK

Monterey, Cal., Jan. 18—Mrs. Arthur Brown's poor little baby was not born in the Salinas Hospital—after all.

It was born in a cell in the prison to which the prohibition officers dragged her in spite of everything she or her desperate young husband could say or do.

Little Sue Brown with her big innocent, childish eyes, and her pretty babyish mouth went through her hour of hideous torture alone in a dirty dungeon that is not fit for a dog kennel for the veriest mongrel of a stray cur.

She does not know what time it was when her child was born. They took her watch away in the prison and through her long night of solitary agony she had no way to tell the time.

She cried and screamed and beat upon the door of the dirty kennel where she crouched in her forlorn misery—but no one answered her.

There was no one to answer within reach of her voice, except a crowded bullpen crammed with the dregs of humanity in the shape of men—drunk, dope-crazed—delirious themselves, some of them—shouting and laughing and groaning and shedding their own maudlin tears—they had no time and no thought for a little frightened mother or her dead child.

MATRON ABSENT

Matron—Oh, yes, the Salinas jail has a matron—quite an interesting person they say with a good many friends — many of them political persons of importance—you could not expect a woman like that to stay all night in a filthy hole like that jail—or all day either.

No decent human being could spend an hour there without carrying the memory of that hour like a scald upon the heart as long as that heart remembered to beat.

Oh yes, I know what I am talking about—I've seen the cell where they locked up pretty, delicate, refined, honest, little Sue Brown and kept her there even after they knew her condition.

Her mother told me about little Sue.

"I have a family of daughters," she said, "all good girls—and Sue is the best of the lot, such a quiet little thing, so in love with her husband and so devoted to her children, I just can't understand how this could have happened.

"Someone must have a spite against her or her husband. Why Sue never drank a drop in her life!

"She is better this morning, poor little thing. She clung to me just like she used to when she was little and somebody hurt her.

"I'm going over to the jail now I want to see that place where they put my little girl—why they knew she was sick when they took her there—her husband told them —but what did they care, that man Laughery had it in for her. There's something queer behind the whole business and we are not going to let it rest. They've picked the wrong victim this time."

Sue Brown's two uncles, stalwart, intelligent, well-to-do men, white to the lips, looked at each other and if I had anything to do with this terrible story, I would keep away from these two men, who love little Sue Brown as if she were their own child.

PRISON HORROR

And then we went to the Salinas prison.

"This is where the lady was," said a man in the sheepskin vest, with an uncertain smile.

"It's no such thing," roared a giant in dirty corduroys. "That little girl was locked up in yonder. Make 'em show you the place, madam, somebody ought to know about it."

There had been a window of some sort in the cell once, but some crazy prisoner had kicked it out and there was the jagged opening with a filthy blanket hung over the heavy iron bars.

The wall was filthy, the floor was filthy, the miserable excuse for a bed was filthy, the room was heavy with foul air. On the floor by the miserable cot stood a little pair of neat shoes and on the wall, hanging in the midst of obscene pictures and some poor wretch's idea of a witty inscription, hung little Sue Brown's pretty dress of red—the one she wore when she dressed up to go to town with her young husband.

Sue Brown's mother stood everything with determined composure —until she saw her little shoes. Then she began to cry.

"Oh, Susie," she said, "little Susie. And you always so neat and so particular, you to lie here in your agony alone."

Outside, in the waiting motor car, were Sue Brown's two beautiful children, laughing and playing a game about the rain drops raining down the windshield.

And all over Monterey County people are telephoning and whispering and wondering how it is that right on the main street of Monterey that there are two places that sell $300 worth of booze a day apiece

TRACTORS SEEN AS BOON TO NEW RUSSIA

This is the sixth and concluding article of the series on conditions in Soviet Russia of today, written exclusively for International News Service by Frazier Hunt, magazine writer, war correspondent and newspaper man.

London, Jan. 18—On Oct. 1, 1933—the official close of the initial five years' industrial plan—Russian peasants are promised more than 400,000 tractors; and a million by 1938. Today four great tractor plants are being built in different parts of the Soviet union. They are planned to turn out more than 100,000 a year—as against the eight to ten thousand imported annually from America at present.

A hundred thousand tractors a year! It is fantastic. And yet they may do it. Personally, I am inclined to believe that they will be doing splendidly if they turn out 25 per cent of that number.

But whether it is 25,000 or 100,000 a year, these new living things of the machine age—these symbols of the future—will find their way over the great Russian land and millions of rich acres will for the first time feel the thrill of a plow and hear the song of a reaper.

With it all goes great plans for stupendous state grain farms, cooperative fruit farms, cotton plantations and a magnificent sweep of enterprises that taxes any imagination.

Furrows five miles long on the greatest wheat farm in the world—the "Gigant" with its 244,000 black acres lying as flat as a billiard table in the rich lands of the North Caucasus. Plans for 120 great state grain farms, averaging 100,000 acres each.

Great cotton projects based on incredible irrigation schemes — worked out and supervised by the finest engineering brains of America! Fruit orchards as great as California's—packing plants and canning establishments—improved breeds of cattle and sheep—great dairy farms.

Thousands and thousands of acres of beautiful, rich, black soil lying like virgin prairies, unfenced, open to the rain and sun and new ideas; spaces stretching beyond a thousand horizons—one-sixth of the whole earth; a land of the future; a land worthy to contest with great America for the world.

MAYOR GUILTY IN BIG LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 18 (INS)—Mayor Raleigh P. Hale of East Chicago and Police Chief James W. Regan, together with 13 other defendants, today faced federal prison sentences for their part in the East Chicago liquor conspiracy case.

After 12 hours of deliberation a jury brought in a verdict of guilty against 15 of the 19 defendants Federal Judge Thomas Slick set February 15 for the date of sentencing.

A crowd composed of defendants, their relatives and curious citizens thronged the courtroom for hours to hear the verdict.

Those found guilty were among more than 200 others who were indicted following a grand jury investigation of alleged vice and liquor conditions in East Chicago this fall.

Besides Mayor Hale and Regan were Chief of Detectives Martin Zarkovich, Detective Patsy Rooney, Nick Sudovich, alleged lieutenant of Al Reapone; Sanford Overall, Grice Chandler and "Cap" White, John Antonian, Bertha Popp, Joseph D'Angelo, Enrique Orta, Phil Collenger, Thomas Thomas and Tony Zaleski.

STAGE AND SCREEN

SALVAGING SALESMEN FOR ART

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHILE the legitimate theater, as an institution, may have its private aches and pains, you will observe that its most devoted subjects are not yet prepared to surrender. They may cry out earnestly for more and better doctors; may even be anxious to test the old Kickapoo Indian remedies as a last resort,

IF anybody of importance has been omitted in the weekly symposiums on the general subject of the state of the American drama it has escaped our attention. Now, from faraway St. Louis, comes words of greater and more profound wisdom on the subject than you have any right to expect from what the newest senator, Mr. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, refers to as one of our backward states. In regions in and about St. Louis, where Mr. Paul Beisman leads a forlorn but battling host, the drama is at low ebb only during the winter months, when the strategy is directed from the corner of Broadway and Forty-second st. In the summer, under local auspices, and with Paul Beisman to point the way, opera lovers of St. Louis have the best goods in the market at sane and sensible prices.

Nicholas Young

THERE must be meat in Mr. Beisman's observations, for he holds a proud record of personal record of achievement. Quoting him from the T. F. E. O. A. Quill (theatrical press agents' house organ) Mr. Beisman says: "Personnly I think all the bunk about 'what is wrong with the theater' should be shelved. Get producers to send us good shows on the road and hire agents (meaning press agents) that know what it is all about and the show business will be back to normal."

WHAT the Broadway producers, with notable exceptions like Ziegfeld, Hopkins and Gilbert Miller, have failed to understand is that all the prosperity of the theater is confined in a muddled manuscript. Anything has been good enough for the road after Broadway had been served; cheap casts and cheap productions, they have intitly asserted, will suffice. As to press agents—the sales managers of these mutilated productions—apparently anyone owning a cable Remington will do. When Mr. Beisman pleaded for press agents who "knew what it was all about" he probably spoke in language entirely foreign to producers who pin their faith in a manuscript and then expect the public to accept it because it had once been played on Broadway.

IF there is anything chiefly the matter with the theater it is because the hard, cold business of exploitation by intelligent press agents has passed from the legitimate stage to the screen. The pesky film, having stolen the best actors, apparently is now completing the job by robbing the legitimate theater of its best salesmen.

SIMON NOT SO SIMPLE AS HE MAY LOOK

YEARS ago a famous critic described a great comedian as an actor who was not afraid to surround himself with a cast of good players. This is exactly what Florenz Ziegfeld has done for Ed Wynn, star of "Simple Simon," who comes to the Colonial on next Friday.

The desire of Mr. Ziegfeld to give Mr. Wynn the best of supporting players has materialized in the selection of Bobbe Arnst, the diminutive singing and dancing comedienne who appeared with such great triumph in "Rosalie"; Alan Edwards, one of America's best known juveniles, who appeared with Will Rogers in "Three Cheers," last season; Dorea Leslie, the young musical comedy heroine who has had a meteoric career; Will Ahern, the cowboy comic; Harriet Hoctor, "All-American ballerina"; Hugh Cameron, veteran of 200 plays and Paul Stanton, who appeared with Frank Bacon in "Lightnin'" for six years, and Lee Morse and Douglas Stanbury.

The greatest assemblage of Ziegfeld glorified girls ever to be seen in a single production, including such well known beauties as Gladys Glad, Hazel Forbes, Ruth Patterson, Helen Walsh, Frieda Mierse, Betty Bassett, Blanche Satchel and Caja Eric, will grace this production.

The book has been written by Mr. Wynn and Guy Bolton and is full of originality, outrageous comicalities and joyous entertainment. The music and lyrics were written by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, already famous for their song hits "My Heart Stood Still," "You Took Advantage of Me," "Here In Your Arms," "Sentimental Me" and "Manhattan."

DUSTMAN PIE FOR ACTOR

EDGAR KENT, one of the best known members of the Theater Guild Acting Company, is the second man to have played the colorful role of Alfred Doolittle, the philosophically amusing dustman in "Pygmalion," beginning its last week at the Hollis Street, next Monday.

Mr. Kent's first appearance in Boston was at Symphony Hall in 1912, with Mrs. Pat Campbell in "Hedda Gabler." He has appeared in two previous plays with Frieda Inescort and Dudley Digges, other members of the Guild's acting company. He was with Miss Inescort in Galsworthy's "Escape," with Leslie Howard, and with Mr. Digges in "The Professer's Love Story."

With Mrs. Campbell he made a coast to coast tour in a repertoire of classics, including "Magda," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Hedda Gabler," and "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith."

And with all of his notable achievements in the theater Mr. Kent delights in telling the story of his meeting with George M. Cohan and seeking an engagement.

"What have you done?" snapped Cohan, busily engaged at the moment.

To which Mr. Kent replied in utter bewilderment. "I can't think of a thing just now."

Roland Hayes Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon in Symphony Hall at 3:30, there will be a recital, the second of the season, by Roland Hayes. The negro tenor will be accompanied by Percival Parham. His program will include: Bononcini's "Cara, si, tu mi consumi"; Handel's "Rendil sereno al ciglio," and "Pack Clouds Away"; Arnes "Love me or love me not"; Howard's "Love in thy Youth', a group by Brahms—"Ruhe, die allebchen," "Nicht mehr zu dir zu gehen," Sontag," "Nachtigal," "Botschaft"; and the following negro spirituals: "Who is dat a writin'," "Choose your seat and sit down," "Oh, shepherd, feed my sheep," "Ain't David play on a yo' harp," and "In a dat mornin'."

NOVELIST PUT THE 'IT' INTO LITTLE THEATER MOVEMENT

By FLOYD DELL

Co-Author of "Little Accident," at the Plymouth.

NOBODY has asked me, but the fact is that I learned all about how to write plays back in Greenwich Village before the war. In the interval between the Bandbox Players and the Washington Square Players, long before the Provincetown Theater and the Theater Guild, I was the Little Theater Movement in New York, and held high the banner of the ideal in the old Liberal Club.

I SAY "I" because I wrote and produced the plays and designed and painted the scenery and acted all the principal roles; but there were, of course, some other persons whom I allowed to take a part and do the things I couldn't get around to. Not that I was selfish. I just wanted to be sure that everything was well done. The stage at the Liberal Club was about as big as a kitchenette, but a dramatist must accept the limitations of his stage.

Flody Dell

On the other hand, my collaborator, Thomas Mitchell, being a regular actor and used to having lots of room to act in, couldn't understand why I wanted to bring on our characters two at a time, like animals going into the Ark. And I am still rather alarmed when I sit in the theater and see the wedding party come tripping in at the end of the first act. It never fails to give me a thrill to discover that the stage can hold nine people all at once.

Otherwise, Broadway playwriting and Greenwich Village playwriting seem to me exactly alike; but then, the Greenwich Village I knew wasn't the solemnly esthetic place it seems to have become since.

GLAZOUNOV IS GREETED AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

THOUGH the audience at this week's Symphony concerts comes more or less prepared for what it is to see and hear, it rubs its eyes none the less. Here before it is, in the actual and plentiful fresh, Alexander Glazounov, grand old man of present day Russian composers, great connecting link with the past, one of the great line. Here is a man who rubbed shoulders intimately, as an equal, with Rimsky-Korsakov, Borodin and Balakirev, of whose music Franz Liszt was a champion.

It seems incredible, but the miracle is accomplished before our eyes: Glazounov, as guest leader, conducting a program devoted entirely to his own works. The explanation is, of course, that Glazounov developed as a composer at an extraordinarily youthful age: at 16 he had written a symphony taken seriously by his master, Rimsky-Korsakov.

Perhaps, it explains, too, the pathos that this concert held for some of us. For it was evident as the program proceeded, that Glazounov is not a man of his time. Granted the stupendous musicianship that are evident in the pieces played on this program, including the Sixth Symphony, the Violin Concerto and the Symphonic Poem, "Stenka Razin," Granted the talent, the very genius that fills these pieces with music of the highest order, music for the most part not Russian, but cosmopolitan. Despite this, one feels something foreign to our time: one senses the spectacle of an actor of genius playing before an audience no longer in sympathy with his play or with his style.

None the less, it is distinctly an "occasion" this week at Symphony Hall. The program rises in steady crescendo of interest to the beautiful, sweeping "Stenka Razin." Benno Rabinoff plays the solo part of the Concerto smoothly, with small but fine tone, with appreciative musicianship. And the audience, suspicious in its opening greeting to the composer, ends by being as cordial as the hundred musicians on the stage, giving one long ovation after another.

Public Library Concert

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30, in the lecture hall of the Boston Public Library, there will be given a concert by Paul Hastings Allen, composer and pianist; Margery Gilchrist, soprano, and Elnar Hansen, violinist.

HOLDS DANCE IS RELIGIOUS

WHEN Ted Shawn was a small boy and the usual question was asked: "What are you going to be when you grow up?" he invariably answered: "A preacher." This ambition was fostered up until the time when, a student in theology at the University of Denver in preparation for the Methodist ministry, his studies were interrupted by a severe illness which kept him in bed for many weeks.

"During this enforced quiet," he explains in one of the early chapters of his book, The American Ballet, "I had time to think deeply, and I thought myself out of the ministry and free from all previous moorings. And when I finally crystallized within my consciousness, and came out with a form, it was the form of the dance as religious expression. Of course, all my friends thought that I was headed straight for the south gate of Hell. It was not really a change of base at all, it was only a change of form; and when I met Miss St. Denis, we found that our fundamental concept of the dance was the same. She, pursuing the dance upstream to its source, found there religion, and I, pursuing religion upstream, found the dance was the first and finest of religious expression, and so we have been wedded artistically and humanly ever since."

On the program to be given here by Mr. Shawn and Miss St. Denis at the Boston Opera House on next Tuesday, an outstanding feature will be a ritualistic number, "Ramadan Dance," to the music of Anis Fuleihan. In it Mr. Shawn portrays an Algerian youth in the month of Ramadan, ecstatically celebrating the mystic nuptials of earth and moon. It has found a place among the most popularly successful of Mr. Shawn's creations.

Barrymore Souvenirs

Monday night at the Bowdoin Square Theater the management will present to all patrons a souvenir photograph of Lionel Barrymore.

'VODVIL' ON COMEBACK FOR SURE

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"VAUDEVILLE, declared a sick patient months ago alongside the 'legit,' is a mighty healthy thing, and in full vigor, right at the present time, with its comeback as one of the big features of the season!" So declared to us a man who knows vaudeville inside and out. He is Sid Lawrence, manager of the Keith-Albee, where he is putting on, seven days a week, the RKO acts booked from the big Palace, in Gotham.

"RKO, it is only just to say, held the vaudeville standard up always, kept putting on high class shows, hiring the best talent in the field, and hence is to be credited for what it has done for this good old form of theater entertainment," Manager Lawrence continued. "You personally know what we have given the Boston public; and I can say that this year 1930 is going to be the RKO Jubilee Year in every way. My bookings prove it." And then he showed us the bills for coming weeks; and we can enthusiastically support the Lawrence statement. Big acts are on the way, and many of them. Had we the space we could name them; they seem to us the pick of the profession. So the more honor to the company's executives for what it has done, and is doing, for vaudeville which has so many lovers in this section.

Sid Lawrence

SOMETHING now about Mr. Lawrence. He is a recent comer into New England, so ought to be properly introduced. He was born at Muskegon, Mich., October 1, 1894, being christened Cedric Franklin Lawrence. But in the course of time the first two names have faded in show business until he is now known only as Sid Lawrence. At the age of 12 he was a telegraph messenger boy; at 14 he had stepped into the theater. He served as "candy boy," and after seven months was lifted to "card boy," his task being to take the cards announcing the acts to each side of the stage. Because he looked older than his years—he still has this trait—he soon was given a job in the box office. He frankly says he has had to "lie about" his age to prevent the school authorities from parting him from the theater. Suddenly, when he was barely 16, an emergency brought a managerial vacancy, and through the efforts of three newspapers which took an interest in him, Sid got the job. Ever since that time he has been hailed as the youngest theater manager on record.

MR. LAWRENCE is skilled in every angle of show business; and combines with an intimate knowledge of vaudeville, a close-up acquaintance with the films. Best of all, he studies the public and its wants, and his endeavor is to give them the best at popular prices.

NEW SHEARER PICTURE ONCE WOULD HAVE BEEN 'DARING'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18—So quietly has Norma Shearer's cast been assembled for her next picture, "The Divorcee," that not a hint has leaked out concerning it, nor yet a word of her plans for making such a talkie. "The Divorcee" (that title, you will admit isn't as sensational today as it would have been before divorces became a national pastime), is based on an anonymous novel, one of last season's best sellers in the fiction market.

Now about that cast, it is interesting I think, that Chester Morris will play opposite Miss Shearer. It is his first time on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Florence Eldridge, well known stage actress, will have an important part as will Helen Johnson and Helene Millard. Robert Leonard who was to have directed "The High Road" Frederick Lonsdale's play, will direct the "The Divorcee."

Louella O. Parsons

I have an idea "The Divorcee" will be one of those smart, sophisticated dramas with a touch of comedy, the type of play in which Ina Claire appeared so successfully a year ago.

THE theater going public was seriously annoyed when Ben Lyon found a previous engagement with Howard Hughes in "Hell's Angels" prevented his playing opposite Bebe Daniels. Annoyed because they wanted to see Bebe and Ben make love in the movies. Now Ben has finished with "Hell's Angels" and is playing in "The Boomerang," a local stage play, so there is nothing to prevent him from emoting opposite her in "Smooth as Satin." In spite of reports to the contrary, the Daniels-Lyon romance continues to be one of the most consistent in Hollywood and it wouldn't surprise me any day to hear that Bebe and Ben have slipped away quietly and taken the final step.

JOHN CONSIDINE, JR., is back from New York. That was bound to mean that someone had been signed or a play bought or something. John never travels to the Big Town without bringing home "the bacon," figuratively speaking. That someone, this time, happens to be Una Merkel who played the little southern girl in "Coquette" with Helen Hayes, on the stage. Miss Merkel has been put under a long term contract by United Artists and will appear in future U. A. productions. Her first picture will be one of the feminine leads in "Abraham Lincoln." I am not sure whether that means Mary Todd or Ann Rutledge. De-[illegible] upon which woman you consider played the biggest part in his life.

LEON ERROL'S trick feet and funny falls are coming to Hollywood immediately. Mr. Errol plays a part in "Paramount on Parade" and his contract was negotiated by R. P. Schulberg when R. P. was in New York. This isn't Errol's first appearance in the movies by any means. He played in several of Marion Davies' early pictures, in fact, we might call Mr. Errol a pioneer in the movies he has been in so many of them and he was one of the first important stage actors to consent to face the camera. How funny that sounds, consent to face the camera. Now most of these important stage actors are eagerly hoping to be called and few of them refuse the summons when it comes.

PATHE considers it an excellent piece of news that they have corraled Russell Mack, stage director, actor and producer. A man as versatile as that ought to be a help to any company. His first will be an Ann Harding production, selection to be made later. Now just a little about Russell Mack, for you may be as dumb about some of these stage personalities as this columnist. Mr. Mack starred in and produced "The Fourflusher" and was brought to Hollywood by E. K. Lo, to direct the dialogue in "Rio Rita." By the way, we hear rumbles now and then that Pathe is to branch out and take on new talent. There are many missing faces on the Pathe lot. Ralph Block, who used to be one of the chief bosses at Pathe, is now a writer at the Fox company, holding down, I am told, a very good job.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random. Mrs. Edwin Knopf's charming mother being introduced to Hollywood film circles, Edwin Knopf being congratulated at a preview of his first Paramount directorial effort, Joseph Schenck announcing to a good friend over the long distance telephone that he will be home in 10 days, Eliza Bartlett wearing green from head to toe, keeping a late luncheon engagement at the Embassy Club, Marion Davies wearing an old fashioned sailor hat with a red velvet jacket with puffed sleeves as a part of her costume in "The Gay Nineties," Mary Maclean and Mary Pickford taking a drive together, Eddie Mannix and Hunt Stromberg hurrying to San Bernandino to take a look at an M-G-M preview. All Hollywood going into raves over La Argentina, the dancer. That's all today.

GIRL PROVES SOLOMON IS 'ALL WET'

SOMETHING new in amusement! That's a big order to fill. Experienced theatrical producers have tried for years to give the public something new. Solomon said, "There's nothing new under the sun." But it finally took a woman—not exactly a woman—a mere slip of a girl, just turned 20—to astonish the theatrical world with something new and novel. The girl is Ruth Selwyn, wife of the illustrious playwright and theatrical producer. She worked on one idea for six months before it began to take shape and out of her original idea grew the "Nine Fifteen Revue," distinct departure in musical attractions which comes to the Wilbur for two weeks starting, Monday, January 27.

Ruth Selwyn

Ruth Selwyn, for the first time in the history of the theatre, assembled together under one banner, 25 of the world's greatest composers and 25 of the world's most famous theatrical authors. This is an achievement in itself for managers have a tough battle at times to corral two or three writers at one time. But this young girl did the impossible, gathered them all together in one large hall, told them what she wanted and put them to work.

They turned out a revue the like of which has never been duplicated.

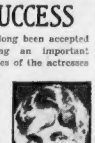
STUDY IS BACK OF SUCCESS

FADS have long been accepted as playing an important part in the lives of the actresses and few are the number not supposed to be busily engaged in some favorite pastime away from the footlights, yet Miss Joan Colburn, the leading woman in Horace Liveright's mystery play, "Dracula," which comes to the Hollis St. for two weeks, beginning Monday, January 27, declares that her work practically fills all her time. The player finds all her time and ambitions is engaged in a constant study and effort in striving for improvement, for, in the opinion of Miss Joan, the greater one's ability, the less one ever reels satisfied.



Joan Colburn

A continual improvement should be noted in the playing of a character, according to Miss Colburn, for the true artist learns something new every day and this should be reflected in one's portrayal.

To the many stories one hears of the theatrical profession, Miss Colburn declares that while it may or may not sometimes make it a little easier, no player of any real note or standing ever attained one's capability.

PLAYS QUEEN OF WHOOPEE

OF all that number of screen stars who rose to fame after serving apprenticeship among the Mack Bennett bathing beauties, none is more popular than Marie Prevost, who is the "whoopee queen" in "Party Girl," the Tiffany all-talking production now playing at the Modern and Beacon theaters.

Her beauty of face and form gave Miss Prevost a start in Hollywood, but her personality and ability soon attracted attention. Her fan mail became one of the largest in the movie colony, so she soon won opportunity to step from the two-reelers into the role of featured player. Her first chance was with Charlie Ray in "The Old Swimming Hole" and later came "The Beautiful and the Damned, "Tarnish," "Kiss Me Again," "The Marriage Circle," and "The Dark Swan."

In Cecil B. DeMille's "The Godless Girl," Miss Prevost scored a great hit. Again, she repeated in "The Flying Fool," with William Boyd.

Miss Prevost was born in Sarnia, Canada, on November 8, 1902. As a child she was taken to Los Angeles to live; there she was educated in St. Mary's School, and in the Glenn Taylor School.

Miss Prevost has dark hair and blue eyes. Her hobbies are athletics, especially swimming and riding; and pets. She loves dogs especially, and has in her kennels a number of varieties, including a large St. Bernard. She also has a fondness for eats.

Next Wednesday evening at 8:15 in Jordan Hall, Virginia Warren, a young American soprano, who has recently returned from Paris where she made her debut, will make her first Boston appearance.

JOHN GETS HIS HAIR CUT

JOHN BARRYMORE, the distinguished star of stage and screen who makes his talking picture debut as the star of "General Crack," now at the Metropolitan, has his hair locks closely cropped in military style to fit his dynamic character as the fighting soldier in this photocrama.

As this romantic tale of love and adventure takes place in the 18th century Europe, the custom of then period demanded short cut hair, especially for those in the military service. The closely trimmed head also aided the men of the day when they wore powdered white wigs in state occasions in the royal palaces.

Marion Nixon, Lowell Sherman, Hobart Bosworth, Philippe De Lacy, Armida, and many others are included in the cast in support of Barrymore in "General Crack." Alan Crosland directed.

Burlesque Changes

HOWARD—"Kuddling Kuties," a Mutual show, featuring the dancing soubret, Sugar Schadd. In the supporting cast are Max Fields, Anna Fink, Jeane Williams and Melva Lenzi. Vaudeville interlards a Pat-K-O vaudeville make the show continuous.

GAIETY—"The Bohemians," a Mutual burlesque attraction headed by Mae Brown. In the supporting cast are Sam Mitchell, Jack McVey, Lew Powell, Palmer Young and Chickie Wells. Hotsh's Gayety jazz orchestra supplies instrumental music.

Elly Ney Recital

Mme. Elly Ney, German pianist, will give her first Boston recital this season in Jordan Hall, next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

GREAT DIVA TO HAVE ROLE OF ELIZABETH

DURING the coming season of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, February 3 and through February 15, Boston will have the opportunity of hearing Rosa Raisa as Elizabeth in "Tannhauser. This will be on Wednesday afternoon, February 12. Word to this effect has just been received from Chicago and it is with keen expectancy that Mme Raisa looks forward to this event, for to Rosa Raisa, Tannhauser remains one of the greatest of all operas, representing as it does a period in the life of Richard Wagner before his abandonment of the opera-form for the music-drama.

"The music of Tannhauser is of noble character throughout," remarked Mme. Raisa. "To those who look for the moral lesson in a work of art, there is no disappointment, for the whole opera, with its magnificence of structure and richness of detail, typifies the struggle between the good and baser elements in the human soul.

"To sing 'Elizabeth' has been one of my most cherished desires."

Appearing in the cast with Mme. Raisa will be Mmes. Frida Leider, Alick Mock; Messrs. Theodore Strack, Richard Bonelli, Chase Baromeo, Giorgio Polacco will conduct.

SALES TALK IS THE NEED

EL BRENDEL, "the inimitable," who plays one of the leading comedy roles in "Hot for Paris" with Victor McLaglen at the New B. F. Keith's this week, suggests a course in salesmanship for every actor who wants a chance at stardom. Until he learned to sell himself to producers and directors he was in the background doing funny things while others got the applause.

When a director, having heard of his clever antics as a comedian, would send for him, Brendel would arrive wearing a neat but old suit of clothes and waited patiently while the director explained what he wanted him to do. Brendel would go away meekly pondering his characterization and forgetting to wonder whether or not the director had been impressed with him.

Raoul Walsh wanted to use him in "The Cock-Eyed World." "What do you think I'll do with you?" Walsh asked.

"I can show you in a few minutes just what type of work I do."

Without waiting for an answer, he went into his routine, improvising as he acted. Walsh rolled with laughter. The broad comic struck his sense of humor forcibly—so much so, that Brendel's role in the Walsh film was an outstanding one and gained him immediate attention of the critics and public.

When Walsh prepared to film "Hot for Paris" he called Brendel into another conference. There Brendel showed him new stunts, additions to his act, new talents in dialect and acting that won for him a featured role with McLaglen.

GROUND WORK APLENTY AT DENNISON

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Dennison Airport, while suffering from a bad attack of "highitdeitis" during the stormy weather of the early part of the week, continues to carry on in the ground and mechanic schools. A couple of interesting as well as instructive lectures are scheduled for next week. On Wednesday evening, Walter Greene, instructor to the ground school, will bring a prominent aerial navigation expert, to tell the boys how to get about in the air on a cross-country flight.

This aerial navigation feature will be one of the most interesting of all the lectures heard in the ground school during the present winter. Most of the students attending the school are also flying at Dennison Airport, and quite a few are about ready for their limited commercial and transport license exams. So, when this talk is given, Greene expects a capacity house in "Side Slip Hall," as the airport's building is known.

Then Paul Wilson, instructor of the motor mechanics school, also run by Dennison, will tear a carburetor apart and put it together again for the edification of his students on Monday night.

Last summer, because he couldn't spare the time from school, John Thiebault, one of Dennison's students, was obliged to cancel his flying instruction, and go back to the books. Now he is again at the controls of Dennison's Waco's and Birds, and seems to be enjoying it to the limit.

Who says you can't learn to fly because you are a bookkeeper or a truck driver? On the books down at Dennison's are students from every walk of life, and Hal Martin, operations manager thought it would be a good idea to list them all. This is what he found: doctors, lawyers, radio operators, mechanics, capitalists, clerks, truck drivers, students, professors. Quite a list, what?

New York city will shortly have an airport which will be at or near in the city, and one of the greatest in the country, according to a dispatch received from Holmes Airport, Inc., at Jackson Heights. This new port will be known as the Grand Central Air Terminal, Inc., which company is owned by the General Aero Corp. of America.

Because of its proximity to New York city, the real estate occupied by this air terminal assembly, it is believed, is the most valuable property in the world being used for an airport.

The airport is being filled by means of the excavations brought out of the new 43d st. subway now under construction, and loads of fill are going into the airport at a rate of between 1000 and 3000 truck loads per day. Sufficient area had been levelled by the first of last March to permit minor operations to begin. Ivan R. Gates, head of the Gates Flying Circus, stated that his company had carried more than 12,000 passengers from the 75 per cent completed airport in the last few months.

The airport is bounded by the new T-Borough Boulevard, and the newly widened Astoria Boulevard. The proposed extension of the L. I. R. R. and B. M. T. lines will bring the subway right past the airport and plans are being drawn to have the tube install a station at the air terminal.

This looks good. But then, don't forget our own Boston airport over on Jefferies Point. The new tunnel or bridge, whichever it will eventually be, will bring the heart of Boston right next door to the airport, so to speak.

POWER, BEAUTY FEATURES OF AUTO SHOW

Mayor Curley extended a welcome to the automobile industry today at the 28th annual Automobile Show opened at Mechanics Building where more than $1,500,000 worth of cars are on display.

The show will be open daily until next Saturday night and is expected to attract a record attendance and volume of business.

"The 28th annual show conveys its own message," said Mayor Curley—"a successful institution, finely entrenched, each year increasing in service and popularity.

"As mayor of Boston, it is my very great pleasure to extend a welcome to Boston and its citizens the welcome express the hope that an even larger measure of success may be enjoyed this year than any previous year in the history of the industry.

"May the annual gathering be in keeping with the best ever furnished an expectant public."

The show, a March fixture for many years, makes its January debut—again in charge of Chester I. Campbell—to keep abreast of the custom which annually sees fewer and fewer cars "put up" for the winter months.

Everywhere is apparent the tendency to more horsepower. There is a marked increase in eight-cylinder cars and the V-type 8-cylinder motor and the front wheel drive appear for the first time in an auto show.

There is a wide variety of brilliant coloring and lines are more sweepingly racy than ever.

More and more manufacturers it appears from an inspection of the hundreds of models, have made use of non-shattering glass and slanting windshields of non-glare vision for the safety of passengers.

Noted Educator Dies

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 18 (AP)—Dr. Hans Froelicher, 63, one of the original faculty of Goucher College and acting head of that institution, died here when suddenly stricken with a heart attack.

N. Hampshire Asks Coal Rate Reduction

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Charges that rates on bituminous coal to New Hampshire from points in Pennsylvania and West Virginia were unreasonable were filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The complaint, signed by Ralph W. Davis, Attorney-General, said the State used large quantities of soft coal from mining districts in Clearfield, Greensburg, Westmoreland, Brookeville, Pittsburgh Connellsville and Fairmont, and asked the commission to compel the railroads transporting this coal to reduce rates.

FAMILY OF 15 MADE HOMELESS BY FIRE IN CHELSEA

Harvard to Reject Any Fund to Relieve Charwomen

A Wonderful Love Story by Author of 'Hollywood Girl,' 'Easy.'

What Has Happened Before

Happiness and love have remained steadfastly with Tom and Lovejoy Nicholson during the first year of their married life. The arrival of Tom, Jr., brought more joy to the little green bungalow. Then comes Mrs. Aline Alderson, rich but childless neighbor, to sow the first seeds of discontent. When Tom refuses to go to the Alderson's New Year's party, Lovejoy is incensed.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 8

THE quarrel had been coming on for weeks.

It had been coming on like a gathering storm, ever since the first day that Mrs. Alderson had set foot in the little house . . . Mrs. Alderson with her clothes and her diamonds. With her light-hearted freedom and her pity for poor stay-at-home Lovejoy.

And now—like a storm—the quarrel broke over them.

They had been having their early supper. Lovejoy had only a mouthful or two.

But she had all she wanted.

She pushed her plate violently away from her, upsetting her glass of water, and stood up.

"Tom, and you can sit there, trying to look surprised, all you want to!" she rapped out. "But you know perfectly well that I lead the dullest, rottenest, gloomiest life that anybody leads anywhere," Tom Nicholson."

Tom's face didn't change. It kept its look of amazement and hurt and helplessness—the helplessness that a man always feels when the woman he loves suddenly turns on him.

"Good lord, Lovejoy," he said, and there was no anger in his voice. "I'm giving you every nickel I make. I'm doing everything that I can do to make you happy—"

"The dickens you are," Lovejoy snapped him off. "The first thing I've asked you to do for me in months—to go to this party with me—you calmly refuse to do. You can't afford to give me any amusement yourself, and you won't let me have any when it's offered free. . . . You're away from the house all day, seeing people and having a good time . . . and you never think of me here with nobody to talk to but the baby and the grocer and the man who comes for the rubbish—"

She turned from the table, pulling the cloth with her, as she turned. A plate crashed to the floor.

At the sound of it, she jumped and then burst into a storm of sobbing. She stood against the wall, laid her face on it and cried like an angry child.

"Lovejoy, you know I don't have a good time all day. You know I work like a horse all day and every day." Tom's voice came to her through the noise she was making. "And you know things aren't always going to be this way with us, sweetheart."

He came from his side of the untidy little table that had been so pretty three minutes before, and put his arms around her.

"We aren't always going to be poor," he whispered into her hair, his lean hard cheek against his wife's wet quivering one. "In another six or seven years we'll be sitting pretty—"

"Six or seven years," sobbed Lovejoy, pushing him away from her. "Six or seven years. . . . What good will that do me? I'll be 30 in six or seven years. . . . I want some fun now, Tom, now, now! Do you hear me?"

"I'd be deaf as a post if I didn't," Tom answered, angry now, himself. "Do you realize that you're screaming like a fish-wife? Lovejoy, what's really the matter with you? You're not raving like this just because of one party. There must be some other reason."

She raised her wet flaming face to him.

"Oh, I've told you I'm sick and tired of all this!" she told him, her sobs sinking lower and lower. "Look at this place! Look at these tiny rooms that other people have lived in . . . people as poor as we are, I suppose. Even the furniture isn't ours . . . Not even those dishes on the table. . . . And here I'm stuck . . . in this hole."

She stopped crying and looked around the humble little place with eyes that seemed to see it for the first time. . . . There was a grease-

Sunken Treasure Comes All Bottled

Stories of sunken "treasures" on a rum-lined coast shifted to Cape Cod today when a coast guard patrol boat reported fishing up two sacks of rare rye off Warren Point.

The patrol boat, working out of the Woods Hole station, set her grappling irons for a thorough combing of the ocean bed in the belief that a cache of bootleggers was established there. Similar catches have been made off Rye Beach, N. H.

15 DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE IN CHELSEA

Father of 11 Discovers Blaze; Gets Children and Grandparents Out Safely

Fifteen persons were driven to the street when fire, starting in the first floor of a two-story wooden dwelling in Carroll st., Chelsea, swept through to the roof.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hartigan and their 11 children, occupying the second floor, were forced to flee in night clothing after Hartigan discovered the blaze.

His aged parents on the first floor were guided to the street by their grandchildren. The fire was believed to have been caused by a defective chimney.

The younger Mr. Hartigan was awakened by an alarm clock and while making ready to go to work smelled smoke. He went to the kitchen to investigate but at the threshold of the door was driven back by a sheet of flame sweeping up through the floor.

He rushed through the house arousing his children and the first to awaken ran to the first floor where their grandparents were sleeping. Blankets were thrown about the old couple, and, aided by their grandchildren, they made their way through the heavy smoke to the street.

All of the fifteen occupants of the house escaped injury.

Lodger Saved in Fitchburg Fire

Fitchburg, Jan. 18—The timely discovery of fire in a room on the fourth floor of a lodging house on Main st., here today, by Patrolmen Andrew O'Donnell and Walter Holden of the Fitchburg police department saved the life of one lodger and possible destruction of the house by the flames.

The officers saw smoke coming out of the fourth floor window and investigated. They rushed through the lodging house, located the fire and smashed down the door when knocks failed to bring any response. Inside they found John Shea, 30, a lodger, unconscious from smoke fumes. He was assisted to the street and the policemen went back and aroused a score of roomers.

The policemen then attempted to combat the fire.

Shea, the man overcome, was quickly revived by a local physician.

Buys Freight Liner for Boston Service

The purchase of a new freighter for the Boston-New Orleans trade to augment the fleet now running there was announced today by Moore & McCormack, Inc., agents for the Commercial Pines.

The vessel Lake Elkwater was purchased from the Shipping Board and will be renamed Commercial Bostonian. She has been fitted with side ports for speedy handling of cargoes.

HARMONY ECHO FOR FIN. COM.

Harmony prevails with the city administration at City Hall and the finance commission, always its severe critic, as Mayor Curley starts on his third term.

For the mayor, as well as Chairman Edward T. Kelly of the board of assessors, publicly agreed that Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the finance commission was right when he told the Real Estate Exchange that Boston taxpayers were being forced to pay the bills for past, present and future improvements and that a revaluation of the property throughout the city should be made.

In regard to the revaluations of the property in the city, the mayor said that he had directed the transfer of every first assistant city assessor from his usual district to another district to make certain an equitable valuation.

WINSOR ESTATE GOES TO THREE

Three children, his only heirs, inherit the entire fortune of Robert Winsor, president of Kidder, Peabody Co. and internationally known banker who died January 7, according to his will filed in Middlesex registry of probate.

The amount of the estate is not indicated as no bond was filed with the will. There are no public bequests.

The three children who will share equally in the estate are Robert, Jr., and Alexander Winsor, sons, and Mrs. Mary P. Trumbull, a daughter, all of Weston.

Suggested appraisers of the estate are Louis K. Liggett, national Republican committeeman and head of the United Drug Co.; F. C. Dumaine of Groton and J. L. Richards of Newtonville.

Under the terms of the will, the children, who are also named as the executors and trustees, may pay over and distribute at any time, any part of the principal

DENY VICE RING CONNECTION

Director of the Boston Public Library Charles F. D. Belden has entered the book row controversy and challenges Frank Chouteau Brown of the Watch and Ward Society to prove certain statements made by the latter in Springfield to the effect that "librarians of this state are mixed up in the vice squads."

Expressing astonishment and indignation at the Brown charges and offering printed reports in substantiation of his counter charges, Mr. Belden flatly called on Brown to prove his quoted contention that "those interested in changing the book law are the booksellers, organizations such as the Civil Liberty League and the forces of rum, anarchy and rebellion."

Brown's statement was branded as false by the library director, who cited a long list of prominent educators, librarians, statesmen, clergymen and others of high repute who are professedly in support of the Shattuck book bill, now before the Legislature.

"I have no indications that there are an 'vice interests' behind the Shattuck bill, and I myself am strongly in favor of it.

"As for Mr. Brown's charge that the librarians of this State are mixed up in 'vice squads,' why doesn't he prove it?"

Hold Second Woman as Troy Witness

Imogene Powell of Dilworth st., where Special Officer James J. Troy was killed last Monday by a negro, was arraigned in the municipal court as a material witness, and remanded to jail in default of $500 bail. She is the second woman held as a material witness, Mrs. Mora Gordon of South Boston being the other.

Long Skirts Only Fad, Simmons Girls Rule

The latest "street sweeping" dress is nothing but a temporary fad, and women will eventually return to the comfort and convenience of the short dress.

This is the attitude of Simmons College Debating Club, according to a debate which was won by the negative team on the question of: "Resolved, that the modern styles for women will return them to a state of relative unimportance in every field except the home and society."

On the winning side were Eleanor Gleason and Adeline Horwich The affirmative side was upheld by Brenda Newton and Dorothy Gordon.

The affirmative side presented these arguments:

First, long skirts make women inferior to men.

Second, they hamper women's freedom in business, athletics and sports.

Third, extreme length in dresses increase cost of garments.

Fourth, long skirts are unhygenic.

The negative team neutralized all these arguments by pointing out that the long skirt is only a temporary fad.

"The business-like and up and coming woman of today," said the negative, "would not let a little thing like a change of styles hamper them in their progress."

BIRTHDAY PONY SHOW TODAY

At the Metropolitan Driving Club this afternoon, Betty Scudder will be hostess to a large number of her little friends in observance of her 10th birthday. An invitation birthday pony show with more than 100 entries will be conducted in her honor.

The exhibition is open only to youngsters 12 years of age or under, and the entire show will be handled by the children themselves.

Because of the extreme youth of the entrants, show committee and judges, the exhibition, in which ponies only will be ridden, is of unusual interest. In the youngest child rider class, for example, there are four entrants under three years of age. At the present time the winner of this class rests among Billy Scudder, brother of Betty; David Stone, Gilbert Heathcote and Mary Wilson.

There are 19 children entered in the horsemanship class, which has been divided into two divisions, for youngsters between 10 and 12 years, and children 10 or under.

Bathhouse Plans Ready in 10 Days

Plans for the new State bathhouse at Nantasket Beach to replace the old one which was burned last winter when flames destroyed the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co.'s fleet, will be published within a week or 10 days and construction of the proposed building will begin shortly thereafter.

Microcosm Dance

The annual dance of the Microcosm staff of Simmons College will be held tonight at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, with the Harvardians furnishing the music.

PROTEST JUST A JOKE, SAY OFFICIALS

Efforts of Students Futile as Women's Jobs Are Eliminated

Officials of Harvard University consider the newly-formed Scrub Women's Protective Association a joke and will not accept contributions for the purpose of re-employing the 20 discharged scrubwomen and paying them two cents an hour more as ordered by the State Minimum Wage Commission. The association was formed yesterday by Harvard students.

This was made clear today in a official statement by the publicity department of the university, reads: "The university will refuse money collected in behalf of the scrubwomen because it is the purpose of the collection, as stated in the protest, to pay two cents an hour more to scrubwomen. If the efforts are serious, they will be futile, because scrub jobs are no longer open to women at Harvard.

PLACARDS DISAPPEAR

"The university is not inclined to take this organization seriously. It recalls the protest of the student body on the Gold Coast when a defunct Boston newspaper printed a story alleging all kinds of smut on the Gold Coast, in the dormitories. At that time the students displayed several placards reading 'Don't be dirty.'"

Several placards placed in Harvard dormitories last night, signed "Harvard Scrub Women's Protective Aid Society," mysteriously disappeared today. Who removed them could not be learned. The placards read "Clean up Widener" (the library in which the scrub women worked). Other wording of the placards was "Two cents would keep one scrub woman scrubbing for one hour. Would you give two cents for cleanliness. Give till you're cleaned. Contributions will be received in designated boxes and turned over to the authorities."

RINGLEADERS UNKNOWN

Who put the placards up could not be learned, but it was said that 13 students formed the board of directors of the association. Whether the placards represented ridicule of those responsible for discharging the 20 scrub women or whether they were intended to help bring about the reinstatement of the women and an increase in their wages to 37 cents an hour from 35 cents, could not be definitely learned.

That the replacement of the women by men was an economic measure was admitted today by the publicity department of the university, which stated that if the order of the state minimum wage commission is complied with by paying all women working at the college two cents an hour more, it would mean an additional expenditure of several thousands of dollars.

If the scrubwomen's wages were increased, all other women employes would be entitled to more, in the opinion of the officials there.

Arthur L. Endicott, comptroller of Harvard, president Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, grand-daughter of the poet James Russell Lowell, who headed a committee of prominent men and women, speaking in behalf of the scrubwomen, that all the women should be taken back as parlor maids as soon as vacancies occurred.

Legion Entertains School Children

Six hundred school children of Orient Heights were guests at a Punch and Judy show given by Orient Heights Post 54, American Legion, in the Bennington st. hall of the Legion.

An entertainment committee in charge was headed by Representative William Barker, a member of the post. The program included the presentation of flags to the children and group singing of patriotic songs.

Dan Cupid Declares High Holiday in Cambridge

For the first 24-hour period since early last fall not a stuttering groom-to-be nor a blushing bride-to-be made application for a license to wed at Cambridge City Hall.

The city clerk, however, stated that he was not worried about the situation as past experience has shown that they never stay away more than a day.

$100,000 TRUCK REPAIR LEAK IS ORDERED STOPPED BY CURLEY

SAYS PUBLIC FUNDS ARE WASTED

Mayor Calls Attention to Repair Department and the Municipal Garage

A drain of more than $100,000 yearly on the city treasury for repairs of city owned trucks today was ordered stopped by Mayor Curley.

In a letter to Edward G. Richardson, property clerk of the public works department, the mayor asked that no further contracts be given to firms for repairs of such vehicles.

"The city maintains a repair department and municipal garage on Albany st., reminded the mayor, saying that in view of this city garage there is "no justification for a leak of this volume.

INVESTIGATES WASTE

The mayor wrote Mr. Richardson that he "had been investigating a prolific waste of public funds in your department, namely, repair of motor vehicles."

"My information," continued the city executive, "is that in 1929 the city of Boston expended for repairs of trucks in excess of $100,000."

Richardson was informed that "accordingly you are directed to make no contracts hereafter for repairs, other than with the concern manufacturing the type of trucks that's to be repaired."

CALLS FOR FIGURES

Richardson was requested to supply at once the exact figures on such truck repairs for the past five years.

Mayor Curley asked for names of companies doing the repairs and the exact contract figure as paid to them.

Commenting informally on the matter, Mayor Curley said that he felt the annual repair bill of $100,000 was "pretty nearly" as big an amount as the cost of the trucks themselves.

The mayor is having prepared a statement of how many trucks the city has, and also what their purchase costs were.

Bill Would Protect Families of Heroes

Influenced by the murder of Patrolman James J. Tracy, Senator Frank W. Osborne of Lynn yesterday filed a bill which would require cities and towns to vote at the next state election on the acceptance of an existing permissive act providing for the payment of compensation to widows and children or dependent parents of policemen and firemen killed in the performance of their duty.

The bill provides for the payment of an annuity not exceeding $1000, increased by not exceeding $200 for each child under the age of 16. A municipal compensation law provides for payment of a flat sum of $2500. Local acceptance of the annuity act automatically would repeal the validity of the flat $2500 compensation law.

MARKSMAN CUP GIVEN POLICE

A new cup was presented today to Boston police who have entered the winter pistol competitions. The cup, donated by Huntington R. ("Tack") Hardwick, will be awarded to the best marksman of the department.

In March about 200 policemen are expected to qualify as expert shots. They will contest for the cup, which will have the winner's name engraved upon it each year until some officer has three victories, after which it will be his permanent property.

The cup is in the possession of Post 251 of the Veteran of Foreign Wars, a policemen's post.

Barney Will Gives $5000 to Charity

Gifts amounting to $5000 are made to charity in the will of John J. Barney, Brookline, filed in probate court at Dedham today. The widow, Mrs. Mary A. Barney, receives $5000 and the residue.

Organizations receiving bequests of $1000 each are Holy Ghost hospital, Cambridge; Little Sisters of the Poor, Somerville, and the Society for Propagation of Faith, Home for Destitute Children and Little Sisters of the Poor, all of Boston.

Earn $41,017 While Learning How to Sell

More than 1300 studying salesmanship in the high schools of Boston earned $41,017 during the month of December while putting their training to a practical test, according to Edward Rowse, commercial co-ordinator in the school department.

Several hundred of the students were employed in Boston department stores and the plan was carried out by the department in conjunction with the Retail Trade Board, by which salesmanship pupils may obtain practical experience.

Hub Plane Wrecked in Crash; None Hurt

A monoplane owned and operated by Val R. Chick, Boston flier, was wrecked at Miami, Fla., according to a message received today by Mrs. Chick at her Gloucester home. The message, signed by Chick, stated that his plane was in collision with another on a Miami field just as he was taking off. Occupants of both planes escaped injury, the message said.

Red Agitators in Waltham Are Fined

"I appreciate the fact that factory workers have a particularly heavy burden to bear," commented Judge P. S. Chmiff in Waltham District Court today as he fined Jackson Wales of Fifth st., South Boston, and Miss Goldie Wahlman, 19, of Cottage st., Chelsea, found guilty of passing out communistic literature in front of the Hood Rubber Co.

The young man paid $5 and the girl $3.

50,000 Scouts to Affirm Allegiance

More than 50,000 Boy Scouts of New England, half of them living in Massachusetts, and 10,000 in the troops of Greater Boston, will reaffirm their allegiance to scoutdom on the evening of February 8, in connection with the 20th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America which will be observed by 600,000 boys throughout the United States from February 7 to 13.

FIND SUICIDE'S BOOKS TANGLED

"The accounts of Atty. Calvin S. Tilden of Swampscott, who committed suicide in Hotel Avery, Jan. 7 are considerably involved and I don't know what the extent of his defalcations will be until his accounts are examined," said Atty. Edward P. Furber, special administrator of Tilden's affairs, today.

Atty. Furber said two to three weeks will be consumed in examination of Tilden's accounts.

According to report, the shortages may total between $150,000 and $160,000.

During the past eight years Tilden, who was a former star hurdler at Harvard, is said to have converted to his own use funds from several estates for which he was caring. These conversions are said to have been made through forged checks, fake mortgages, also larcenies.

His legal colleagues began an investigation as a result of a letter written by the suicide to John Chapman, asking him to help straighten out his tangled affairs.

One of the 10 estates managed by Atty. Tilden is said to have been victimized of $40,000.

Hub Yacht Off to Races in Havana

Lashed to the after deck of the steamer San Gil, the racing yacht Ara was "off to the races" today.

The Ara, owned by Marcein Jenckes, will take part in races at Havana next month. The San Gil, in addition to a general cargo for Cuban ports, carried Thomas Whalen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy of Quincy, Mrs. A. S. Pear of Cambridge and D A. Tarbell of Newton as passengers.

Bishop Babcock Remains the Same

Passing a restless night, Rt. Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, D.D., suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, who is at the City Hospital for treatment of a fractured skull, suffered in a recent automobile accident, is still on the danger list today.

Bishop Babcock's condition remains the same as yesterday, although the sleepless night reduced his vitality somewhat. No X-ray has as yet been taken to show the extent of the injury.

Lancastria Coming With New Skipper

The youngest skipper in the Cunard fleet, Capt. H. A. L. Bond, will bring the Lancastria to the port Monday morning on his first trip in command.

The Lancastria will reach the lower harbor tomorrow night and land more than 300 passengers here after morning inspection at quarantine. Capt. Bond has been a chief officer for a number of years, and was promoted a month ago.

New Date for 'Baby Volstead' Hearing

The committee on legal affairs has pronounced that it has changed the date for hearing the bill for repeal of the "Baby Volstead" act from January 27 to Wednesday January 29, in the Gardner Auditorium.

The committee on the judiciary announced hearing on the various measures for abolition of capital punishment Tuesday, January 21, at 10.30 a. m.

HUNGER STRIKE BY BROOKLINE MAN AVERTED

Gov. Allen Initiates State Relief in Strange Case of Cripple

With announcement today by Governor Allen of completion of arrangements for a permanent nurse for George A. Meuse, crippled Brookline carpenter, danger of a hunger strike by the victim was averted.

Agreement between the State and the town of Brookline, reached at a conference of Public Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow and Brookline authorities, calls for splitting the nursing bill between the State and the town.

Dr. Bigelow was delegated to confer with the Brookline officials by Governor Allen, after Mrs. Meuse, who works as a dressmaker to support her husband and child, had appealed to the Governor for aid.

The Meuse case is regarded as one of the strangest in Massachusetts medical history. Several years ago Meuse fell from a staging and his back was broken. Doctors said he could live only a few weeks. An insurance company, under the workmen's compensation act has paid more than $14,000 in the case. Recently the Suprem Court upset a decision of the accident board and ruled that the company need make any further payments.

Mrs. Meuse, unable to pay for a nurse, took the case to the Governor, pointing out that her husband could not live without such service.

The attending nurse, meantime, agreed to stay on the case voluntarily for a few days and the victim promised to continue to take nourishment for the same length of time.

Napoleon's Gift to Wife Coming Here

Guarded by the utmost secrecy, the purchase of a diamond necklace given by Napoleon to Empress Marie Louise, his second wife, has been completed by Arthur Berenson, Boston and New York attorney, acting in behalf of an unnamed Bostonian.

The necklace, envy of collectors for more than a century, was valued at $500,000, but was sold for $95,000 by a representative of the former Archduchess of Austria, Marie Therese.

2 More Soviet Ships Here to Recondition

Two former shipping board vessels arrived here today for reconditioning before delivery to the Soviet Russian government.

In tow of New York tugs the Lake Gazette and the Lake Gert, were hauled into the Atlantic Works East Boston.

The Lake Fellow and Lake Farndale, first of the lot to arrive, are being conditiond now, in the big contract given Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. Eleven more are due here, according to officials at the plant.

Boys Charged With Robbing Poor Boxes

Fred Roche, 19, of Quincy, and a 15-year-old boy were arrested charged with robbing offering boxes in St. Anne's Church, Wollaston.

In Quincy court today Roche was given a suspended sentence of one month and the other boy was held in $100 for a hearing in juvenile court Friday. Twice the offering boxes have been robbed recently, once of 20 cents and the second time of 59 cents.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 160

THE LIBERTY TREE stood on what is now the southeast corner of Washington and Essex sts. and was first owned (apologies to John Blaxton, Solitary of Shawmut) by John Viall, vintner, who conveyed the property to William Costin in 1644. The tree was alternately used by the citizens of Boston to hang in effigy obnoxious officials or to be hung with flags and lanterns whenever the rulers were to be applauded. To the Liberty Tree, on the night of November 1, 1765, the royally appointed "tea consignees" were called and made to resign their commissions. During siege of Boston the tree was felled by a party of citizens led by one Job Williams. A British soldier, who attempted to carry away a branch of the tree at that time, was slain. Soon after the evacuation of the city by the British a Liberty Pole was erected on the stump of the tree. This was replaced by another pole in 1826. In 1833 the Liberty Tree Tavern stood on this site. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

MUSEUM HEAD URGES SECOND FAR-EAST TRIP

Director Holmes Favors New Expedition to Mesopotamia and Persia

"Would it not be worth while to endeavor to finance another expedition in Mesopotamia or Persia?" asks Edward J. Holmes, director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, in his annual report made today to the directors.

"The results of the work of Dr. Reisner in Egypt have been amazing," he adds. "The material could not have been obtained otherwise, and its value to the museum is many times the cost of the expedition."

T. Jefferson Coolidge, president of the Museum, in his annual report, says: "I believe it would be unwise to attempt to enlarge the musium. I think our building at the present time is sufficient for all futures ends that can be foreseen. Our efforts should be spent in increasing the quality but not the size of our exhibitions."

Mr. Coolidge says the Museum is "absolutely dependent on future gifts in order to build up our collections." He adds:

"At the present time our entire unrestricted income plus our present annual subscriptions is about sufficient to pay running expenses, and our funds are restricted to the purchase of works of art are very meagre."

In addition he says: "I believe we should spend money on our grounds in order to improve their general appearance whenever we feel we have funds to spare for this purpose."

FUND ASSURES B.U. HOUSE PLAN

Boston University's co-operative house plan, started for co-eds attending the university by Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin two years ago, was such a success that Harriet E. Richards has given a donation which will make the plan a permanent part of the university.

The idea of the co-operative house was simply that 20 girls pooled their funds and did their own cleaning, sweeping, cooking and bought food collectively, with the result that they were able to cut their living expenses down to $8.50 a week.

Miss Richards' donation is the start toward a fund which will be raised to provide a building so that this work can be done on a much larger scale.

The donor is well known throughout Boston as one of the founders of the Home and Field Club of Boston and also as first secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Audubon Society.

Slayer Suspect on Way Back to Saugus

Paul Smith, indicted for the murder of William J. Fendell, Saugus storekeeper, was on his way back from Philadelphia today in custody of State Detective William Murray and Patrolman Roland C. Mansfield of Saugus.

Smith, whose home is in Malden, was arrested in Philadelphia a week ago, and held for the Saugus police. He is said to have admitted taking part in the attempted holdup of Fendell, but denied any knowledge of who fired the fatal shots.

Letters From Readers

Sees Urgent Need for Housing Commission

Editor Boston American:

In my opinion Mayor Curley was misinformed when he decided that no emergency existed for the renting and housing commission connected with his office. The mayor stopped the appropriation and said that the work must be done by the law department during the coming year, worrying over 6000 cases such as were settled by the commission last year.

I was one of those helped and I know that the voters of Boston are going to suffer raw-deals from landlords if this commission is not restored. They have helped 30,000 people in the past 10 years, people who ought to write the mayor about this. C. F. M.

Scientists Defended as Boon to Mankind

Editor Boston American:

I want to answer that letter from "Evangelist." If it wasn't for the scientists, including medical students, there wouldn't be enough people left to go to the churches or any money to bring them, either. We know plagues and diseases that would wipe out the world have been cured by science.

Why question the great minds who spend this money for a telescope and building to gain more knowledge and also provide work for the laborers? This may seem radical, but the Bible says it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. So, where does the money come in?

FAIR PLAY.

Blames Prohibition for Prison Outbreaks

Editor Boston American:

The prison outbreaks in which the lives of many guards have been sacrificed are terrible. Many of these guards whose lives have been snuffed out by barbarians are good family men. The barbarians who killed them think more of gold than of life.

I think every one of the prisoners who participate in prison outbreaks should be given the electric chair. It would teach those who remain a lesson and prevent additional breaks. More work and less idleness would help. More gas bombs and less pleading should be used when outbreaks occur.

More crime is committed in this country in a week than in all of Europe in a year. Prohibition is the cause. Prohibition is a farce, a comedy played by the rich man who shirked from the last war. G. B. L.

Jones Law Will Defeat Own Purpose, He Says

Editor Boston American:

After reading what has been said in your paper on prohibition, may I add this little bit after an experience with the Jones law?

Prohibition has an evil eye with its proximity to the Jones law. The severity of punishment under that law will defeat its own purpose. I ask in all justice why should prohibition violations be classified with manslaughter, embezzlement, and even sedition, white slavery and other evils? Does it now strike any one who has given the slightest attention or consideration to this law, that it aims to destroy the government by force?

I have heard others say this. I believe this statement is just and fair. Many of us might be willing to tolerate prohibition under some limitations, but to tolerate such a law as the Jones law is beyond me. I would like to hear from some of your readers on this point. H. J. L.

EXCHANGE DAY BRINGS MANY SURPRISES

Tomorrow in Boston is "Exchange Sunday" when [illegible] many localities Protestant ministers will exchange [illegible]th their brothers of other denominations.

Among the towns to carry out [illegible]s plan, now fast becoming a [illegible]arly event, are: Arlington, Brain[illegible], Chelsea, Dorchester, Everett, [illegible]den, Melrose, Roslindale, Somer[illegible]s and Watertown. Some of [illegible]e will set aside the following [illegible]day, and others will postpone [illegible]l February, but the majority [illegible] carry out the plan tomorrow. [illegible] a number of the cities the [illegible]ches use what is known as [illegible]rprise system. Congregations [illegible]ot know until they arrive at [illegible]h what minister they will [illegible]n in their pulpit. This is done [illegible]at no one will stay away [illegible]ervice because he does not [illegible]for the preacher, or go to [illegible]ther church than his own in [illegible] to follow his own pastor. [illegible]ecret plan will be used in [illegible], Chelsea and Arlington in [illegible]h committees has made [illegible]ll exchanges, and in Water[illegible]o there will be no secrecy. [illegible] years that town has [illegible]out the surprise plan. TWO THOUSAND CHURCHES ON DRY ISSUE

The Massachusetts Federation of Churches has circularized all Protestant churches of the commonwealth, asking, or recommending, some kind of observance for the 10th anniversary of Prohibition. The Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League has also put into every church a program for observing the day. A large number of clergymen have already reported that they have complied with suggestions. Others are planning a service for tomorrow.

Almost unanimously these churchmen believe the present law is beneficent and largely effective in putting an end to the evils of the old saloon days. None maintains the law is adequately enforced.

The Rev. Henry Irving Bailey, of the Methodist church of Chelsea, has taken his text from the Bible, book of Habakkuk, chapter 2, verses 12 and 15:

"Woe unto him that buildeth a town with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity!

"Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that puttest thy bottle to him, and makest him drunken also, that thou mayest look on their nakedness."

"Good Citizenship" Fr. Corrigan's Topic

The Rev. Jones I. Corrigan of Boston College will give the 16th lecture in the course on social work conducted by the Catholic Charitable Bureau in the Boston College high school each Tuesday evening. He will discuss "Building a Good Citizenship" This interesting feature of the Young Men's Catholic Association night school is attended by several hundred social workers, sisters and clergymen, who want to learn the best and most scientific methods of taking care of the unfortunate.

Dr. Henry Neumann, head of the Brooklyn Ethical Society and a lecturer in the University of California, will address the Boston Ethical Culture Society tomorrow morning on ways by which right can be distinguished from wrong.

VOTES PROHIBITION.

Last Sunday evening the congregation of the West Newton Baptist Church passed the following resolution:

"Whereas the repeal of our State prohibition enforcement law cannot but fail to increase lawlessness and set back the causes of temperance;

"Be it resolved, that the Lincoln Park Baptist Church go on record against the repeal of our State prohibition enforcement law."

"Be it further resolved, that we ask our State Senator and Representative to vote 'No' on this petition."

THE NEGROES' FRIEND

The Fellowship for Understanding, a branch of Ford Hall, meeting on Tuesday evenings has taken a remarkable step in the direction of fellowship with the Negroes of Boston. This group of Ford Hall is making an investigation of the treatment of minority races in Greater Boston. A series of questions is being sent to many people, merchants, hotel keepers, social leaders, etc., to discover if possible to what extent there is racial discrimination against darkskinned people. Citizens who believe in a fair chance for all our people are enthusiastic over this Ford Hall effort to make this city a city of brotherly love and understanding.

REGIS COLLEGE.

The next meeting of the Regis College Guild will be held Tuesday afternoon, January 21, at the Boston. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock and the officers and members of the committee extend a cordial invitation to members, past and present, to attend this annual reunion of the club.

HARVARD STAR GAZER

Community Church will have for its speaker tomorrow morning Prof. Harlow Shapley, head of the department of astronomy, who will tell what he knows of "The Chances of Life in the Universe." Dr. Shapley stands with the world's foremost scientists and authorities on the solar system and the entire universe. He is known as one who computed star distances far greater than any of his predecessors had been able to travel in their calculations.

Record Entry List for State Amateur Title Bouts

94 BOXERS SEEK 'PURE' CROWNS

WITH a record breaking entry list—a total of 94—the State boxing championships to be held at the Boston Arena, Monday night will provide one of the longest ring sessions of the year, for present plans call for the opening bout to take place at 5 p. m.

From that time until long after midnight, boxers from all sections of the State will fight it out for the eight titles.

The early start of the boxing will make it necessary for the boys to appear for the weighing in ceremonies at 3 p. m., yet it will require all this time to weigh in all the boys, so eager to annex the simon pure crowns.

According to the entry list, there are 22 aspirants for the 115-pound title, the largest class in the tournament and with all the topnotchers entered, the competition is sure to be keen until the final bout

18 IN 135-POUND CLASS

Eighteen entrants in the 135-pound class indicate that Eddie Sullivan, East Walpole boy, favorite to win, will have plenty of trouble on his hands. Al De Angelis, of Revere, was the last to enter this class after he dropped a questionable decision to Sullivan in the final bout at the recent E. A. A. tournament.

De Angelis is one of the fiercest punchers that has broken into amateur ranks recently. He scored two knockouts in the B. A. tournament and this Chelsea shoe worker knocked out four opponents at Manchester recently and two others at Newburyport. He is being picked as a real opponent for Sullivan in the final.

GIANTS IN 175-LB. CLASS

Six boxers will meet for the 175-lb. title and although most of them will be newcomers, it is expected that these giant youths will provide plenty of action.

"I LOOK for a great wrestling match when Joe Stecher and Joe Malcewicz clash in a finish bout, best 2 falls out of 3, at the Arena on Thursday night under the direction of Paul Bowser. Stecher has regained his old dash and has been winning steadily. He has an idea he can regain his lost championship.

"Malcewicz is one of the best of the younger crop of grapplers. He has given Gus Sonnenberg more serious opposition than Lewis or any of the other headliners. Malcewicz figures his youth will enable him to send Stecher down to defeat. Joe then will demand another crack at Sonnenberg.

"IF Arthur (the Great) Shires is unable to come to terms with the White Sox, he can make more money in the ring during the next six months than he could hope to pick up in baseball in three or four years. Shires' baseball connections, of course, are what enabled him to sell himself to the fight game, but now that he has clicked he can go over as a big drawing card for at least six months.

"Unlike most athletes in other branches of sport who have turned to boxing for some easy money, the Great Shires knows what it is all about, he has a good left jab, while he gets plenty of power behind his right duke. I do not believe that Shires can lick any of the fair semi-final boys, but he will defeat all of the ball players and hockey players the promoters can get to meet him.

BRUINS FACE HARD GAME

The Bruins play the second game of their road trip in Detroit tomorrow night, meeting the Detroit Cougars at that time over whom they have registered two wins this season.

A defeat at the hands of the Chicago Blackhawks, not entirely unexpected, in view of Chicago's unusually fine play against the Bruins in the winning season, makes it necessary for the world champions to take the Cougars if they are to have an even break on the trip.

Chicago narrowed the gap between second and first place in the American division by a full game when it defeated the Bruins, 2-1, on Thursday night, but the Bruins have an excellent chance to win back that game on next Tuesday night when they play the Hawks in one of two games at the Garden next week. The other game will be with the New York Americans, who have been playing brilliantly in the last two weeks.

The Bruins will find Detroit in no pleasant mood tomorrow night. After a nice winning streak, in which the Cougars climbed to within a game of the Rangers, Detroit stumped against Canadiens and dropped a 6-1 game. The Cougars are harder to beat, however, on their home ice.

Rangers play at Pittsburgh tonight, Americans at Toronto and Ottawa at Montreal. Chicago and Rangers play tomorrow night in New York, the only other National League game scheduled beside the Bruins-Detroit game.

Cagle Offered Coach Job at Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)—Christian Keener Cagle, crack West Point halfback, and "Chuck" Smalling, powerful Stanford University halfback, who met on the gridiron last month at Palo Alto, Cal., may meet again next season as coaches of Mississippi college teams.

Overtures have been made to Cagle by Mississippi A. and M. authorities as head coach or assistant coach and to Smalling to sign with the University of Mississippi as assistant coach.

Lynch Scores 4 Goals for Jamaica Plain

JAMAICA PLAIN ran its victory string to three straight today in the Arena when it defeated the Charlestown sextet, 9 to 0. Joe Lynch, Jamaica Plain left wing, was the high scorer of the contest, slapping four goals into the nets.

Charlestown was no match for the Jamaica Plain boys. The latter played their best hockey of the year while winning and looked fit to keep right on after that Boston school hockey title.

Brighton high gave Mechanic Arts a hard time in the first clash of the day, but hte Artisans finally managed to get a 1-to-0 award.

South Boston and Dorchester fought hard to break their tie, but neither was able to tally after its initial goal and the game wound up 1 to 1.

Boston College high scored its first win of this season by beating Commerce, 2 to 0. The Eaglets played steady hockey for the first time in the Arena games and were in good condition. With this win giving the team confidence B. C high will b ea formidable opponent for any of the Hub sextets for the rest of the season.

Trade school came through with a 1 to 0 margin over East Boston. English nosed out Hyde Park, 2 to 1, in the sixth game of the a. m.

Latin romped to a 7 to 0 victory over Roxbury Memorial in the windup contest of the day. The Latin subs played the entire first period and scored without any trouble. Denny of Latin was the individual star of this game, with four goals to his credit.

Jackson Girls to Have Court Team

The first call for candidates for the Jackson basketball team brought out 50 prospects. The outlook for this year's team is particularly bright, with very few players lost by graduation. Outstanding candidates are Elaine Smith, of Lebanon, N. H.; Mildred Pander, of Fitchburg, and Margaret M. Taylor, of Sound Beach, Conn.

The varsity will be coached by Miss Ruth G. Lincks, head of the athletic department. Miss Agnes Peoples will have charge of the class teams.

NYP League Strong

The NYP League last year drew 323,000 admissions, leading all the Class B leagues of the country.

Foreign Amateur Teams on Way Here

The Italian team of boxers which will compete against Germany and the United States in a big international tournament at the Garden Monday night, Feb. 3, left Italy on the Roma yesterday, bound for Boston.

The German team will sail on the Bremen next Wednesday, and will arrive in New York on the 25th.

Great Discovery

No one would accuse Connie Mack of being a Rip Van Winkle, and yet the lanky leader seems to have just discovered that football is hurting baseball as a college sport. Still football hasn't hurt basketball as a college sport, or ice hockey, or boxing, or lacrosse.

ARMY 5 PICKED OVER HARVARD

Harvard and the Army will settle differences on the court when the Crimson and Cadet fives clash at Hemenway Gym at 8 p. m. tonight.

The Cadets are strongly favored to win tonight's hoop battle. Although this tilt will be only the third this season for West Point, they have already taken the measure of Delaware, 50-21, and Columbia, 37-31.

Inasmuch as Columbia had an easy time dropping the Cantabs earlier this season, it looks as though the Crimson is in for a tough evening.

Harvard will start its strongest five tonight. The team will have Max Pierce at center, Howie Wenner and Hooch Mahaffy as forwards, and Burns and Nido as guards.

Recent shifts in the Harvard lineup make Sam Burns favored over Jud Rex to start on the defense for the Cantabs. Burns has the edge on Jud in the matter of speed, strength and general huskiness. His work in recent court tilts has won Coach Ed Wachter's stamp of approval.

SHIRES WARNED TO QUIT RING

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP)—Art Shires, Peck's bay boy of baseball and his own big boy of boxing, appeared before Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball's high commissioner, today to receive a warning that he either must quit boxing or forsake the national pastime.

Hoyt Returns His Contract Unsigned

New York, Jan. 18 (INS)—Habe Ruth had a rival today in his holdout campaign against the New York Yankees, as Waite Hoyt, Yankee hurler, returned his contract to the New York Americans without signing it. Hoyt was said to have demanded a "big increase" in pay.

Hoyt's 1929 pitching record showed 10 wins and nine defeats. This, barring the year 1925, was the worst Hoyt did in nine years with the Yanks.

Brown Matmen Meet Yale Tonight

Providence, R. I., Jan. 18—The Brown varsity wrestling victor over Yale in three of the last five contests, will engage the Eli in the first meet of the season in Brown Gymnasium tonight.

Yale, victor over M. I. T. in her opening dual meet of the season, boasts a veteran team and a slight favorite to win.

Interest Increases in Yacht Racing

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

THE increase in yachting interest, steady with each succeeding year, is evidenced by the report of Caleb Loring, secretary of the Eastern Yacht Club, released this week.

On the rolls of the club are 652 members, a gain of 42, or seven per cent, over the figure for January 1, 1929.

In the club fleet are 347 yachts, composed of 47 schooners, 67 sloops, 103 steam and power craft and 130 yachts under 30-foot water line.

The Eastern's list of officers through last year continue this year as a result of the annual election this week. Charles P. Curtis of Boston is commodore once more. Dr. Seth M. Milliken of New York is vice-commodore and Robert A. Leeson of Boston is rear-commodore.

Caleb Loring of Boston is secretary, and Stephen W. Sleeper of Boston is treasurer—incidentally, for the fifteenth year in that office.

NO CHANGE IN PROGRAM

The club this year plans no important changes in type of program and James C. Gray, Leonard M. Fowle, Leonard M. Fowle, Jr., and Robert M. Tappan are again to take charge of the club's racing.

Now that the sailing power boat—winter and summer—designed for Commodore Charles A. Welch, skipper at Marblehead, has been launched at Lawleys in Neponset Marblehead yachtsmen practically are experiencing the feel of the season.

The new boat, named Walrus and with a ketch rig, will be rigged at Lawley's and then taken to Marblehead. She is a husky 40-footer, designed by L. Francis Herreshoff, and, in reality, is more of a power craft than a sailing vessel.

Her unusual feature is the pilot house, which is amidships and glass enclosed, with the forward windows sloping aft. Under sail she is steered by a tiller.

The craft is nearly plum stem, with a big, wide tramsome aft, carrying an outside rudder known as a "barn door" rudder, sheathed at the waterline forward with copper to prevent ice chafing.

Geo. Grimm

WALRUS IS ROOMY

Below deck the Walrus is very roomy, with the galley in the extreme after part, and a large open forecastle with an open fireplace forward.

With the work of the four America Cup defending "J" sloops progressing at Lawley's and at the Herreshoff yards — two sloops at each place — a mantle of secrecy is beginning to fall.

Recently, at the steel construction shed at Lawley's, a notice was

Elder-Wildermuth Meet on Track

New York, Jan. 18 (INS)—Jack Elder, speed marvel of Notre Dame University, will test the whirling pace of Karl Wildermuth in the Brooklyn College games tonight.

The Georgetown flyer is a favorite to beat the western football star, whose fleet feet beat the Army football team last fall when he dashed off a 97-yard run.

Wildermuth and Elder will clash in the four-race spring series over the 60, 75 and 110-yard and the 100-metre distances.

Jimmy Daley of Holy Cross is the only one of five other starters figured to trouble Wildermuth and Elder.

By BILL GRIMES

AFTER a week of inaction, the Boston Tigers will oppose the Philadelphia Arrows tonight at the Boston Garden.

The Tigers and Arrows are to enter tonight's conflict tied for third place. The Powers team has not met with its usual success at home this season, but expects to break through with a victory and thereby stay in the honor class of the league.

The Canadian-American League champions have not played since a week ago tonight, when they battled through 70 minutes of fast, rugged hockey with the New Haven Eagles and wound up in a deadlock for the fourth time this season.

Bill Grimes

Judging from the brand of hockey they have been exhibiting during their practice sessions of Thursday and yesterday, the Tigers have recovered from their slump. Carried away by their success of last season, the Tigers have been overrating themselves, with the result that they are going into the second half of the schedule with their backs against the wall.

ALL TEAMS STRONG

Every team in the league is stronger than a year ago and the race to the finish line is going to be keenly contested, especially in regards to third place. Providence is the only club conceded a play of berth and the other four teams will fight it out for second and third places.

Manager Eddie Powers will go through with the shift in his lineup that he intended to put into effect a week ago, starting Sonny Manning at right wing, in place of Yank Boyd. Manning has more than the average amount of ability but he has never been able to sufficiently arouse himself to the registering point.

He is fast and rugged and at his best when the game is one of those knock down and drag out affairs. He has been with the Tigers for three seasons and if he could develop some self confidence, he would win a regular berth on the first line.

Manning will team up with Capt. Deacon Waite and Johnny Loucks. Waite is still at the top of the list of high scorers, with 22 goals and 14 assists but he is being closely pressed by Art Chapman of the Reds.

OATMAN WILL START

Eddie Oatman and Reg Mackey will start on the outer defense with Herb Rheaume in the nets. The Tigers' second line will be composed of Eddie Burke, Reg Mills and Clark Heyd, while Pono Contant and Bill Regan will spare for Oatman and Mackey.

Bob Taylor, who was with the Tigers last season but drafted by the Bruins and then farmed to the Quaker City team. As this will Arrows, will be at right wing for he was married on Christmas Day so Bob's first appearance here since he will be presented with a set of golf clubs by his many home town friends.

The Arrows will open with Roy Leonard, formerly of Kansas City, Lloyd Andrews and Charlie Cahill, the ex-Bruin on the front line, Frank Peters, well remembered from the old Maple A. A. days and George Nichols, who is the property of the Bruins, on the outer defense and Mush Roberts, of Somerville in goal.

RUNNERS IN FIRST MEET TONIGHT

JOE McCABE, veteran quarter-miler at Boston College, is expected to be running with the Eagle mile relay team against New Hampshire next Saturday night in the William C. Prout memorial games at the Boston Garden.

McCabe was left at home when Boston College mile quartet left for New York for the first race of the season against Holy Cross, Georgetown and New York University at the Brooklyn College meet tonight.

McCabe has been bothered by a slight sickness. It isn't enough to keep him off the track but slowed him up sufficiently to let Jack O'Brien nose him out in the time trials by the margin of a few seconds

O'Brien is a half miler while McCabe's best running has been at the quarter-mile distance. Coach Ryder feels that McCabe will get back on the mile team when the time trials for the Prout carnival are held

RUN AT BROOKLYN TONIGHT

Guarino Pasquantonio, Bob Sullivan, Jack O'Brien and Capt. Bill Mulcahy will represent Boston College at the Brooklyn College games tonight. In face of the stiff opposition B. C is not expected to start off the 1930 season with a victory.

Jack Ryder will have three teams in the Prout games. His one-mile varsity, with McCabe running in place of O'Brien will race New Hampshire. The Durhamites turn out pretty good runners and the match should be one of the evening's thrillers.

The Boston College two-mile team will be selected early next week. Tommy Meagher, Bernie Trumm, Brendon Moynihan and O'Brien, from the mile club, are likely to be chosen to run although the time trials may change the berths.

The Boston College freshman relay also makes its debut at the Garden affair.

HAYES LOSS TO TEAM

Until a week ago Ryder was willing to admit that his freshman prospects were the best that he's had in his years of coaching at Boston College. But John Hayes left Boston College and the yearling outlook is not as bright now.

Hayes is going to be another Monty Wells, according to Ryder, and seems sure of being an intercollegiate hurdling champion as well as a classy sprinter and broad jumper.

Johnny dropped out of school to enter New Prep a where he will be groomed for Harvard. No reasons were given, but it is understood that he was convinced that he had the intercollegiate hurdling champion while under the colors of the Crimson would be a much greater honor than holding the same title at Boston College.

Leo McCauley, tiny South Boston boy, and Donald Fleet are now the leading yearling candidates. McCauley has already copped two of the Boston College track records while Fleet is running under fast although he did little running before Jack Ryder got ahold of him.

CANZONERI AND ZERAMBY LOSE

New York, Jan. 18—Jack (Kid) Berg, English lightweight, defeated Tony Canzoneri, Brooklyn Italian, and former featherweight champion, in a 10-round bout here tonight before a crowd of 17,000. Berg weighed 134½, Canzoneri 133.

Canzoneri, a 2 to 1 favorite, won only one round and took a terrific beating.

Berg had Canzoneri in retreat during most of the last six rounds, smothering him with a furious two-fisted attack.

By winning, Berg won the right to meet Al Singer, Bronx boy, with the survivor meeting Sammy Mandell for the lightweight title.

Herman Perlick, one of the fighting lightweight twins from Kalamazoo, won the decision over Jake Zeramby, Boston southpaw, tonight in the first 10-round match on the Tony Canzoneri-Jack Berg card. There were no knockdowns and the bout was clumsy and uninteresting. The crowd booed both the fight and the decision. Perlick weighed 137½, Zeramby 135½

The other Perlick twin, Henry, gained only a draw with Eduardo Corti, bellgerent Argentine, in a six-round go.

MATMEN READY FOR HARD GO

Wrestling Promoter Paul Bowser has arranged a banner card for Thursday night at the Boston Arena with Joe Malsewics of Utica, N. Y., meeting Joe Stecher, king of the scissors hold, in the feature bout with best two out of three falls at a positive finish.

Both wrestlers are in the best of shape for their match, which is a rubber contest, both having won two matches. Malsewics hopes to make the match short and sweet by applying his numerous bag of holds which have made him famous.

Another bout on the card calls for Ed George, international young heavyweight wrestler of the University of Michigan, to meet Freddy Myers of Chicago.

The former Michigan amateur heavyweight wrestler and football star, has appeared in Boston, defeating all opposition inside of 10 minutes.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

FURTHER evidence of the inefficiency of the National Hockey League came to light when the officials of the Ranger-Detroit game were not notified that Bill Cook had drawn a match penalty for his fight with Art Somers, in Chicago.

According to dispatches from Montreal, Bill Cook and Somers were both fined $50 and given match penalties for their display of fisticuffs in Chicago last Sunday night. Somers remained on the side lines during the Pittsburgh game but Bill Cook not only played against the Cougars, but was mainly responsible for the New York victory.

The failure of the N. H. L. to enforce the match penalty on Bill Cook, coming on top of the announcement from the executive office to the Boston Tigers that the New York Rangers had the first call on Bill Regan, when the Les Canadiens, Maroons and Bruins were all after this defense man before the New Yorkers even knew he was in the league, creates a suspicion that Pres. Calder is trying to play ball with Col. Hammond.

When an important N. H. L. board of governors' meeting is in the offing and the politicians are compiling a pre-meeting vote, the Bruins are also with the Canadian clubs. They are supposed to be of the old school and accordingly, if the American clubs held together the vote is tie, five each, giving Pres. Frank Calder the deciding vote.

It is just possible that there will be a net combination at the annual meeting this spring, which will shake things up in a very drastic manner.

Bill Cleary of Cambridge has been added to the Harvard list of hockey officials. If Cleary is given an opportunity to work in major college games, he will make a name for himself as a referee, and within a short space of time will be a fine prospect for the N. H. L.

Although new officials are breaking into the N. H. L. nightly, Eddie Stewart is the only referee from these parts who has received an assignment. Stewart worked the Ranger-Detroit game with Bert Corbeau last Tuesday night. Bill Shaver and Ag Smith are both entitled to a tryout with the big league, but it now appears as though they will need a machine gun to reach that objective.

As Nick Wasnie has been overworked to such an extent that he is about burnt out, Les Canadiens are gunning around for another right winger and they have their eyes on Johnny Gagnon of Providence.

The Reds are showing the effects of their string of eleven undefeated matches. Hago Harrington has a pulled leg tendon; Art Chapman is down so fine that he weights about 20 pounds less than Deacon Waite and Bill McVicar is minus a few teeth

"Mush" Roberts who had the honor of jumping from Somerville ranks to the Bruins without any ifs, ands or buts, is playing wonderful hockey for the Philadelphia Arrows. Scouts who recommend amateur goalies in preference with Roberts are endangering their reputations. The excuse for Roberts signing is the rumors is that he is a right-handed goal minder. Laugh that off

"Ty" Anderson, of the Boston Hockey Club showed that he is made of the right stuff when he refused to allow the Shamrocks of passing against Yale throw him off his game. The Shamrocks had secured two of the three Boston goals against the Elis.

Badminton Court Dedication Today

Keith Mercer, president of the Montreal City and District Badminton Association, will referee the inaugural matches at the University Club of Boston, when the new $80,000 courts will be formally dedicated today

The competition begins at 2 p. m. and the play is open to members, their guests and all who are interested in the game. Preparations have been made to handle 500 spectators.

Badminton is a game comparatively new here abouts, which is played on a miniature court, with a high net separating the players. A very light racquet is used, and the "ball" looks like a paper drinking cup, but actually is surrounded by feathers. The players hit with terrific force and the action is spirited. Scoring is done only on "hand in" as in racquets, as implemented from every point in squash racquets, and 35 points constitute a set. Deft stroking can be used to advantage, and it is believed that the Canadians will prove adept in showing the finer points.

Bay State Boys on New Hampshire Five

New Hampton, N. H., Jan. 18—Massachusetts boys will form the nucleus of the New Hampton basketball five which meets the Dartmouth freshmen at Hanover today.

Four members of the starting lineup are Bay State residents. Mal Sherburne, who is left forward was high scorer in the opening game with Clark school. Russell Hamilton who is enrolled in the Junior College of Business Administration, is at right forward. He is a former Waltham high school student and a resident of West Newton. John Bowler of Ware, Mass., will start at right guard. Red Silvia, former Haverhill high school athlete will start at left guard. Capt. John Hendrigues who comes from Pawtucket, R. I., plays center.

TITLE EVENTS FOR SWIMMERS

Three New England swimming titles, two junior and one senior, will head the list of events at the meet conducted under the auspices of the Whitins Community Association, in conjunction with the N. E. A. A. U. at the Whitins Memorial pool, in Whitinsville, tonight. The 300-yard senior medley and 100-yard breaststroke junior for women and the junior 50-yard free style are the title races listed

Some of the best swimmers in New England have entered the meet and the records in the various events are in danger The big event of the evening will be the 300-yard medley for the New England championship In this race Joan McSheehy, national backstroke champion, is the favorite to lead the field home

Helen Delaney of the Boston Swimming Association, a young miss who is rapidly coming to the front in the swimming world, has been turning in very good times for the medley and it wouldn't be a bit surprising if the Dorchester girl should defeat the national champion Claire Walker, a teammate of Miss McSheehy's, in another strong entrant in this race

The 100-yard breaststroke for the junior title should also be a good race Florence Hatteryl of Brookline, Margaret Lynch of the Boston Swimming Association and Helen May of the Pittsfield Boys Club Auxiliary are three of the best in this race. In the junior 50-yard free style for men, Roscoe Bicknell of Worcester, Bill Purcell Providence; John Meaney and Jim Toomey of the Boys' Club of Boston, and Frank Black and Tim Cummings of the B. S. will be seen

There will be plenty of action in the relay for the Whitinsville C. A. Boston Swimming Association, one of the best teams in New England; Brookline Women's Club and the Pittsfield Boys' Auxiliary, competing for the first time, will battle for premier honors.

$1,250,000 Exhibit at Motor Boat Show

New York Jan 18 (AP)—Three hundred water craft of assorted sizes, shapes and price tags went on display last night at the opening of the Silver Jubilee motor boat show The aggregate value of the exhibits was $1,250,000

Boats to fit any kind of a pocketbook were there, from the smallest outboard to the biggest, most luxuriously appointed cruiser. And as a reminder of the old days and to show just how far the boat industry has progressed in the last half century the Consolidated Shipbuilding Corporation of New York exhibited a motor launch it produced away back in 1883. A clumsy craft powered by a cumbersome naphtha engine with a smokestack All told there were 307 hull, divided as follows: 200 outboards, 72 runabouts, 29 cruisers and six sail boats as well as all the latest models of engines and accessories. The craft represent an increase of four or five knots in speed over last year's models, and prices, in general, are lower.

Bailey Winner in Billiard Tourney

John Bailey of Newton, playing the best game to date in the Class B balkline tournament now being conducted at the State Theater Billiard Club, beat Harry Clark, 150 to 100 Bailey had four runs of better than 20 and one of 24 each, the best Clark could get was one of 17.

The game took 25 innings and gives Bailey one of the best averages ever compiled in a Class B game. He was very consistent all through the match and probably would have had a better average had he not failed to drive the balls [illegible]

K. O. Star

[illegible] Metropolitan A. A. U. light heavyweight champion, won 14 of his first 18 bouts as a professional by knockout

MALONEY IS SURE OF K. O. VICTORY

FURIOUS punching sessions marked Jimmy Maloney's training at his Wamesit camp, where he is training for his impending ring conflict with Armand Emanuel, Pacific coast heavyweight, at the Boston Garden next Friday night.

With the arrival in camp yesterday of Elzear Rioux, giant Canadian, to join Jack Dorval, Tom Kirby and Marty Gallagher, Maloney cut loose for the first time and none of his sparring partners were able to go more than two rounds with him.

Maloney was fiercer in training than at any time during the past few months and he says that he will win this time by a knockout in order to protect a number of bouts already signed up for him.

It's doubtful if the Peninsula idol ever worked so hard in preparation for a bout He's on the road early every morning and his wind is better now than in many weeks He is able to travel at top speed throughout every round and his strength has surprised his camp followers It seems as though he never tires in the ring

Yet in opposing Emanuel he'll be stacked up against an opponent who is cool and calculating, a man who can shoot a straight left with unerring accuracy and it's this weapon that Maloney fears

Hub fans seem to be enthusiastic over the 10-round semifinal between Joe Zelinsky of Binghampton and Victoria Livan, middleweight champion of Italy It is predicted that the bout will certainly end in a knockout as each of these lads, rivals depending upon a powerful punch for victory This bout is attracting almost as much interest as the [illegible]

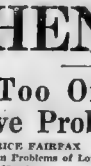
WHEN SHOULD SWEETHEARTS SEE EACH OTHER

Not Too Often, Advises Love Problem Expert

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

HOW often should sweethearts see each other during the time of their courtship and engagement?

Should an engaged couple spend every evening together? Or does satiety follow too steady companionship? Perhaps the answer to these questions is the clue to the problem of "Girl of Twenty-one," as she states it in her letter.



Beatrice Fairfax

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I read your column every night and find you give excellent advice. I hope you will help me out.

"Now, here is my trouble: I had been keeping company with a young man for eight months until about three weeks ago. I was with him every evening—never missed a night seeing him.

"The trouble started when we went away for a week—with his people, of course. They asked me if I would like to go along.

"Well, we quarreled all the time we were away. I got so disgusted that I left one evening and did something he did not like. He forgave me for that. He and his family came home the following week and our quarrel ran along for about two weeks. I told him someone had been phoning me. One day he had me call this party up to see if I was telling the truth, and he listened to the conversation over the phone and found out that I was telling him the truth. I told him I had never been out with that party, and he caught me in a lie. Well, he forgave me for that.

"He told me he was going on the road and I did not like the idea and told him so. Well, we had a fuss. He said we would have to call it off, being sweethearts, but just continue as friends. I said that would be just fine. So he said when he got back he would only see me four nights a week and if everything went smoothly we would be sweethearts again. So I got him a lodge pin, and he is wearing it. When he said goodbye he told me that he would write me. I know for a fact that he loves me. And I love him deeply.

"He told me to go out with whomever I wanted to and have a good time, and I have. But there is nobody like him, and I know for a fact that he has not gone out with any girls since he has been friendship for us. So will you be so kind as to help me out as to how I should return his love? I know one way—by not doing the things he does not want me to do. Can you think of any other way? If so, I will take your advice. My mother says it is good that he is gone—that it might make a change in things all around.

"GIRL OF TWENTY-ONE."

You are in love with your friend, Twenty-One, and he is in love with you—your letter makes that obvious. The problem, then, is how to keep your friendship and love happy and harmonious.

Your own suggestion is excellent —try to please him by not doing what he does not wish you to do. Do not lie to him, if you would have his trust. Play fair, Prove a loyal, wholesome friend.

You asked me for a suggestion as to how to hold his love. Here it is: do not go on too often.

It is a wonder you and he are on speaking terms after seeing each other every evening for eight months. Twice or three times a week at the utmost, is often enough for friends and sweethearts to spend their evenings together. Otherwise, they are sure to become weary of each other's society and are likely to quarrel if only to avoid boredom and dullness. Do not see your friend too often—refuse his invitations now and then. He will enjoy your society more and will be less inclined to take your affection for granted. Do not be afraid to say no and refuse an invitation now and then.

Many a promising love affair has come to an untimely end because a girl and young man spent so much time together that they tired of each other. Wise indeed is the burden of the old song, "Love me little, love me long" Not too much—"plum pudding," is a safe motto in friendship and love.

I believe, Twenty-one, that if you are friend two or three times a week, not more often—and prove yourself a dignified, loyal friend, you and he will soon be sweethearts once more and happier than you have ever been before—I hope so with all my heart!

spot on the dining-room table that had been there before they took the house. The cretonne cover of one of the chairs was worn into a big hole. The cord was gone from one of the window shades.

"This is a fine place for me to wad up my carcass," she said bitterly. "I'd always imagined that when I got married I'd have a semi house and a car of my own and know some nice people. And now the very first chance we have we make some decent friends, you refuse to take it. . . . Well, I'm going to that party tomorrow afternoon, with or without you. . . ."

Sox broke off, all at once, her face working again and tears coming into her eyes.

"Oh, Tom, why are you so mean to me?" she wept, sinking to the floor.

"Mean to you? . . . Oh, my Aunt Maggie!" said Tom.

He leaned over her, pulled her to her feet and into his arms

"Mean to you?" he repeated. "Why I'd lay my life down for you. . . . I'll even to to the doggoned party with you tomorrow.

He held her close to him until her sobs stopped, her face buried in his neck and her arms around him.

Lovejoy, in her old black broadcloth suit and her year-old black velvet hat, felt very shabby when she and Tom rang the Aldersons' front door-bell that next afternoon.

It was a cold gray day with a sky that looked like steel plate, and a high wind that made the dead leaves and bits of paper dance like elves along the gutters

Lights twinkled behind all the windows of the Aldersons' house. And the minute Lovejoy stepped into the big white-panelled hall the warmth and fragrance of summer seemed to fill her nostrils.

"Oh, there you are! Happy New Year!" Mrs. Anderson's voice greeted her, as she and Tom stood uncertainly in the doorway.

She was standing just inside the crowded room, slim and blond in a black velvet dress. Beside her, towering above her, was a very tall broad man with gray hair and humorous kind gray eyes.

"Mrs. Nicholson, my husband, said Mrs. Alderson, introducing him.

But her blue childlike gaze on Tom's face as she spoke

"I feel as if I know you" she said to him. "I've seen you so many times in your backyard, you know, haven't you and your wife ever come over to play bridge with us? I've invited her time and time again."

Tom smiled his crooked boyish smile at her.

"Oh, we're stay-at-homes. We're a baby, you know, that keeps us tied down," Lovejoy heard him say as she shook hands with Mrs. Alderson's husband.

She found herself wondering how a girl as pretty and as young as she could have married this mild aged man.

"For money, I suppose" she decided.

A man who was young and good-looking and heaps of fun? Why, just living with him was an adventure in itself!

"I wouldn't exchange Tom for all the money in the world," she told herself, when she stood beside him at the table in the dining-room where a wonderful sea of sandwiches and cakes and punch was laid out.

She took in the gold-etched plates, the cut glass tumblers with an "A" on them, . . . the solid silver forks and the lace-edged napkins . . . and the well dressed, prosperous crowd of strange people who moved in and out of the luxurious rooms.

"Tom," she said solemnly, when the two of them were out in the twilight, on their way back to the little Stebbins Lane house once more. "Tom, truly I'm not sorry we're poor. I'd rather have you and the baby and all the debts in the world than change places with Mrs. Alderson. She has everything . . . but that husband of hers looks so old. She couldn't be happy with him!"

"Why, she looks perfectly happy to me," Tom answered evenly. "And her husband's a fine fellow, I thought. I had quite a long talk with him, and I liked him. We'll go over there some night, and play them a hand of bridge or two, if you'd like to."

It was only a week later that Tom heard from Mrs. Alderson's husband

He came home from the office early in the afternoon—an unheard of thing—and the instant Lovejoy saw him she knew that some good fortune had come to him.

Women Ought to Be Original in Dress

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

IT is a curious thing that woman who, since the beginning of time, has been an inspirer of others and has led men to deeds because of herself, is at one and the same time so easily inspired and so readily led by the ever-changing fashions of the day.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

One would really expect woman to be so impressionable. It would be logical to conclude that woman would figure out for herself what is most becoming or attractive about her wardrobe and stick to it

But no! Women will wear the most unbecoming dresses and hats if Paris decrees that such shall be the style. Somehow no woman can bear to feel that she is not in the swim, that she is not wearing the very latest, no matter what that may be.

There must, however, be consistency somewhere. Why is it that women are so independent and often stubborn in some opinions and actions and just so dependent and pliant in the matter of clothes?

The answer must be sought in the very nature of feminine emotion. When it comes to questions of love, hate, revenge, jealousy—intuitive instinctive reactions—woman never hesitates. She is always sure of herself. What people say or think does not bother her.

In such cases she is guided by her intuition. And her intuition never fails her. But when the question concerns fashions her intuition does fail her. Fashions really do not rouse her deepest emotions. She thinks a lot about them. She sometimes would seem almost to devote their lives to them.

Woman uses clothes merely as a means to an end—personal attractiveness. She reasons that the more variety she displays in clothes the greater are her chances of being considered attractive.

She does not want to be loved for her clothes. She wants to be loved for herself. She believes she has something to offer and she is willing to offer than looking well in a new gown and bonnet.

Woman, you see, is forever afraid that she may be left behind. That, to her, is an unbearable thought.

Dependent as she is on love to compete her instinctive cravings, she feels compelled to compete in the race on any terms. When once she has won, however, her interest in fashions at once declines. She begins to shift her interests and to devote herself to home building and motherhood and child rearing.

Clothes have had their day, as it were. She still wants to appear attractive in the eyes of the man she loves, to be sure. But unless he interest himself in what she wears, there follows an unmistakable lowering of clothes standards.

Sometimes husbands are still interested in the personal appearance of their wives but do not say anything about it. They do notice the change, however, and it disturbs them.

Many a woman's married life has been threatened because of her carelessness regarding fashions. Many a woman also has awakened to the fact in time and has again made herself irresistibly attractive by paying the necessary attention to what she wears.

Woman should try to be as original and artistic as possible in the clothes she wears.

She is by nature so. Then why not apply it to the art of dressing?

Listen, World!

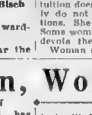
By ELSIE ROBINSON

A DISCOURAGED man has written me a letter. He is sick of life. Facing the new year he finds nothing worth while in his existence.

"Why shouldn't I kill myself?" he says.

And, perhaps, that question may stir a dark response in your heart.

You, too may have lost your appetite for life and are wondering if the next three hundred and sixty-five days are worth the effort. If so, this answer goes for you.



Elsie Robinson

"I'm thirty-seven," he writes; "tired of myself, my profession and life in general. This isn't a temporary mood. It has existed for years. Now it has reached such a pitch that I am contemplating suicide. Yet, even while I think of death, I long for life. I long to be interested and alert and eager once more. But what will make life worth while . . . what will lift this deadly boredom? Don't tell me to bury myself in my work. I have been in my work so long that I think of it with loathing. As things now stand there isn't an interest on earth that holds me. WHY SHOULDN'T I KILL MYSELF?"

No reason against it, I suppose, brother, if life's useless to you and you're unclean with life. But is it? Are you? No! Life can still be made worth while!

What will make life worth while? Life, itself, will make life worth while if you'll give it a chance.

We tire of living, not because life, itself, has failed us. . . . But because we have cut our vital contact with life. Life should feed us and renew us if we will stay close enough to life. But we do not stay close. Instead, we set up artificial programs and call them life. So, gradually, the source of energy is shut off and we develop a spiritual anemia which we call "boredom."

How shall we cure ourselves of a weariness of living? By going back to life. And what does that mean? Generally that means raising Cain with the status quo . . . kicking our denatured programs to pieces.

Get back to life! Get back to jobs and contacts that lie at the root of human! Jobs that will make you sweat and ache and burn . . . and ingle, next morning, with new zest.

Stop thinking of appearances or profits for a while. Give up your office. Dismiss your cook and maid.

Inconvenient? Probably. But suicide's a lot more inconvenient. Wasteful? Maybe. But it's much more costly to waste life than money.

If you're a man, get work for a while on the docks, or in some factory or farm. Get away from houses and subways, movies and billiard halls . . . AND WOMEN. Go to WILDERNESS. Go HE.

If you're a woman, have a baby, make a garden, learn to sew. Get NEXT to some of the fundamental creative jobs that your grandmother did . . . some of those jobs that left her with more ginger at 80 than you have now at 30. If you're a strong enough woman—a highly trained professional who's going sour on her job—get out and be a busher . . . or a cook in a mining camp . . . or a practical nurse. Forgotten that life was free? THAT'LL "LARN" YOU, SISTER!

WHATLL MAKE LIFE WORTH WHILE? LIFE ITSELF WILL MAKE LIFE WORTH WHILE IF WE GIVE IT A CHANCE.

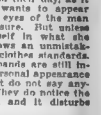
Renunciation of Love

By LUCY LOWELL

THERE are many times when the only sure proof of love is renunciation. There are many, many times when the only way in which we can bring love to its highest, finest fulfilment of itself is to let go from the beloved one; to release the beloved one from the bonds which all human love places upon the object.



Lucy Lowell

To human love at its best is selfish; its dearest dream is possession. Always it attempts to throw a halo about the one beloved, to keep many things from that one. It would, in a word, deny fitness of life in order to save hurt!

Human love almost never is without fear.

It is the rare love that builds itself upon faith; that is never obsessive, never demanding, never critical, never overwhelming with its own intensity. It is the rare love which gives not excuse that enemy of the spirit, jealousy, by declaring it to be an inseparable part of love.

And love cannot exist without freedom. No matter how united may be two lives and however the fact remains that every individual is, deep within his being, isolated from every other individual. This isolation is a law of life; yet love attempts to break through, declaring that there must be no reserves.

It is then that the bonds are felt.

And it is then that the truly magnificent love reaches the supreme height where it finds renunciation possible.

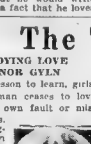
The Truth

ABOUT DYING LOVE
By ELINOR GYLN

IT is a hard lesson to learn, girls, that if a man ceases to love you it is your own fault or misfortune not his.



Elinor Glyn

Because a magnet only can draw a needle, while it gives forth the magnetic quality.

You could not blame the needle for failing away if the magnet, through perhaps misfortune and no fault of its own, lost its drawing power, could you? And so it is with love.

George ceases to draw like from you and you automatically cease loving him.

You do something or become something which kills your drawing power, and your sweetheart ceases to love you.

Love does not lie within the power of the will. You cannot love or unlove at will. If you could you would be quite justified in approaching your partner for ceasing to care for you, but he cannot help not caring.

It is you who are not drawing him. Human beings are only masters of the demonstrations of love, they cannot control the emotion.

Thus a man might say to his son, "John—it is time no longer love Mary Jones, you must love Amy Smith."

The son could reply, "Father, I can keep from kissing Mary Jones if I must, but I cannot keep from wanting to kiss her."

"And I can force myself to kiss Amy Smith, but I cannot force myself to like it." Remember this, girls, and look to yourselves when your sweethearts cease to love you. You do NOT reproach them.

Bride Buys His Ring

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does the bridegroom purchase both his wedding ring and the bride's, or does the bride purchase his ring?

CONSTANT READER.

South Boston.

The groom purchases the bride's ring and the bride purchases the ring that she gives to her groom.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I was entertained at a party recently. After cards there were refreshments. As the hour was growing late, whose place was it to suggest leaving, as the hostess made no move? Was it my place as guest of honor to suggest leaving, or was it the place of one of the other guests?

B. J.

Allston.

One of the other guests should have suggested leaving. Neither the hostess nor the guest of honor can suggest leaving.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper to send a wedding invitation to a person one is sure will be unable to attend the wedding?

F. C. L.

Dorchester.

One would not omit sending an invitation to a friend just because of the feeling that the friend could not come. The invitation registers the fact that you want the friend to come.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Who pays for the bride's bouquet? Does the same person furnish the bouquets for the bridesmaids?

V. F. C.

Jamaica Plain.

The groom sends the bridal bouquet to his bride. He may also send the bouquets for the bridal attendants, but usually the bride's father and mother send these since they are planned as part of the costume of the attendants.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to a dinner dance at a large hotel. Dinner is at seven-thirty. Would it be proper if I wear my hat to dinner, or should I go without it? I will have to wear one, as we have to go by train.

L. F. F.

Brookline.

Since, for the dinner dance, you will wear evening clothes, you should not wear your hat to the table. Leave it in the coat room.

Cora G.—I should wear the most formal of evening dress. I think the event calls for it.

Phil—You should write the girl's guardian first.

Bertha, Cambridge — By all means explain the matter immediately.

'Why' Most Important Childhood Word

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

PROBABLY the most consistent task a mother of a small child performs is talking. A little child wants to know about so many things and he has no way of discovering about them except by asking, and mother is usually the person nearest at hand.

Constance Cameron

"Why?" is the word of childhood, and a most important one.

However, a great many times the very young child should be denied the use of "Why?" for other reasons than to add to his knowledge. He asks "Why?" and doesn't give a hoot what the answer is. He has discovered that to argue and talk will prolong something which seems inevitable and which he has no desire to do.

This discovery usually comes during the period when he is beginning to realize his own identity, and his power to pit his will against those supposedly in authority. It then becomes a great game to see who will win, and a nerve-racking and tiring game to the mother unless she senses at the first break whether the question is a legitimate one or merely a challenge of wills and a ruse to gain time.

There are laws we all have to conform to, and the more quickly a child is made to understand that the law and there can be no arguing or fussing over its respect and adherence to, the more quickly and easily that child going to fit easily and happily into the world about him.

The question: "Why do you put four eggs in a cake?" is a legitimate and natural one for the child watching mother bake. From the answer he can learn something. But when Mother says: "Come now, you must go up to bed," and the child says, "Why?" it is no question of wanting knowledge. The child knows he must go to bed because his health demands that he get sleep and it is time to rest. The "Why?" in that case is merely to get you to talk so that perhaps five or ten minutes will elapse before he actually does go to bed. A law of nature or a man-made law for protection and welfare is considered there must be unconditional obedience

I dislike to advocate the answer, "Because I say so," because it is an answer that has so long been abused by the parent who feels that the child has no right to question anything. But there are times when it can be used to advantage

Your child is going to grow up into a world where a red light means STOP. There won't be time nor the opportunity to haggle over the why and wherefore with the corner policeman. A failure to stop may mean arrest, it may mean a crash and death. A child MUST learn to obey unconditionally LAWS.

When he wants to know why concerning matters where enlightment is concerned he is fully entitled to all the knowledge and information you can give him regarding it. Try to discriminate between these two types of "Why." Encourage the legitimate one, but step on the "Why" born of a desire to quibble.

A Dinner for a Dollar

THESE are the days when many of us feel that we should watch the pennies and endless are the requests for money-saving menus. Here's an example of one, a complete meal, that can be provided for a thin dollar bill

Menu
Clear Tomato Soup
Casserole Hard-Cooked Eggs and Fresh Vegetables with Cheese Sauce
Toasted Polatoes
Grated Carrot and Lettuce Salad
French Dressing
Plain Cherry Gelatine

CLEAR TOMATO SOUP
4 tbsps. brown rice
2 cups water
4 cups tomatoes
1 onion, chopped
Small piece bayleaf
2 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt

Wash rice and cook in 1 cup water until tender. Place canned tomatoes with season ings in saucepan and simmer gently 40 minutes. Do not boil. Force through coarse sieve, add rice, reheat and serve

CASSEROLE HARD-COOKED EGGS
12 eggs
1 tbsp. butter
2 tbsps. flour
1 cup milk
½ cup cheese
1 tsp. salt
1 lb. green peas or string beans
1 green pepper
4 tbsps. parsley

Put eggs in cold water, bring to boiling point and let boil one minute. Turn fire off, put cover on and let stand 20 minutes. Drain off water, let cool and remove shells. Make sauce of butter, flour, milk, cheese and salt. Cook beans or peas with chopped pepper 5 minutes in uncovered. Arrange eggs in casserole pour over sauce and garnish with vegetables. Sprinkle with parsley

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

LONG, long he waited for her answer.
She held him between hope and doubt
Half dreading lest the truth he fathom.
The truth that he was wholly dear.

But when at last he importuned her,
"Speak, Love, for all my being waits
And I can bear suspense no longer,
Grown faint and weak at doubt's dark gates."

Long had he waited for her answer,
While fear and hope kept warring there,
Through dawns when he was thrilled with rapture,
Through twilights when he drained despair.

She spoke, her voice was muted music:
Love, I have waited long to tell
The thing only which your heart was pleading
Lest it might be I love too well!

"Your arms hold all my hopes of heaven,
In dreams I come to nestle there
Through dawns when I am thrilled with rapture,
Through twilights when I drain despair."

Bonds are suitable in their place in the investment list, but even the ordinary investor what attraction lies in a bond yielding under 5 per cent when one can get 5 per cent in many good Boy State savings banks?

Some people, in a very limited class, have an excess of investment funds which cannot conveniently be deposited in savings banks, however divided. This class is certainly much smaller than most of us suppose, and its ranks must grow rapidly at least a bit depleted by the big break. The majority in this class seems to the writer to be apt to be "stock minded" with an idea of recouping losses, rather than "bond-minded." Can the buying pulse be made "bond-minded?" We shall see. In the meantime it seems likely that good common stocks will offer several points for every point advance in the bond market items of corporations of comparable quality.

What Is Thrift? Making Most of Your Life

What Is Thrift for You Now Might Tomorrow Be Thriftlessness

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—National thrift week is under way. What is thrift?

* * *

When I was a cub reporter, receiving as pay exactly the amount my room and board cost, thus leaving nothing for shoes and clothing—enjoyment did not enter my head as even a possibility—I used to run anywhere from one mile to three miles to an assignment in order to save the two cents to five cents carfare. Having won some social fame as a spinster, the exertion was no hardship and I could easily beat the street car. Also, when sent out of town and handed 50 cents for lunch—so called it, and it was really dinner—I would spend six or eight or ten cents, never more. Later on, when located at a branch office where a lot of news had to be covered by hiring a horse and buggy, I scraped together enough to buy a bicycle and used it.

These were some of my conceptions of personal thrift in those days.

As a youth and young man my ideas of thrift were the Scottish-ist of the Scottish. No physical or mental effort was considered too great to earn or save a penny or even a half-penny. Time was plentiful; money most painfully scarce. Therefore, there never was any hesitation in exchanging one for the other.

Life, I was taught from the time I could toddle, was a hard, unrelaxing, perpetual struggle. To earn one's bread in the sweat of your brow thou shalt labor and bring forth," was constantly impressed upon us. Also, "Eat to live, not live to eat," neither shall he eat.

Sweat or starve. That was the accepted philosophy, the accepted decree of Providence.

A few weeks ago, at New Year's, I had a heart-to-heart talk with my schoolboy sons. I told them that one of my resolutions was that I was going to take more afternoons off from business, especially during the summer, when we could go hiking or picnicking, and, naturally, brought a joyful response.

But I went on to explain to them that when they started to work it would be all wrong for them to do any such thing, that it was their duty of every young man to stick very closely to his work, to keep his nose to the grindstone and through the first half of his life and until he had made such progress financially that his wife and children would not starve were he to die.

Almost to my surprise they expressed thorough understanding and acceptance of this line of reasoning. I had half expected them to feel that if it was all right for me to take time for recreation it should be all right for them to do the same thing on the theory that "what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

This leads up to the conception I now have of thrift. I no longer run miles to save carfare or eat 10-cent lunches or pedal a bicycle to save taxi fares or auto hire.

My analysis is:

Thrift is using wisely what you have: Your time, your vitality, your money.

Thrift does not call for niggardliness. Thrift does not call for all work-and-no-play. Thrift does not call for needless self-denial.

John D. Rockefeller is not thriftless when he gives away half-a-billion dollars. Another man might be legitimately open to the charge of thriftlessness were he to spend one dollar for an evening's amusement. Thrift might demand that one person invest every procurable dollar in the most gilt-edged bonds, whereas the striking of money on a long-shot project might be perfectly in order for another person in entirely different circumstances.

Thrift means making the most of life.

When Russell Sage and Hetty Green, the two most famous thrift-wads financial New York ever knew, squeezed nickles and drove close bargains after they had amassed scores of millions of dollars, they were not particularly thrifty. They were not making the most of their lives. They were not using their thrift vitality, their money to the best advantage.

The thrifty person is headed for contentment, character, perhaps a competency and happiness.

CURB MARKET PRICES ARE RUN LOWER

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Curb market closed irregularly lower today. The market showed pronounced heaviness in the first hour, but rallied briskly under the influence of short covering in the last half hour, and leading shares generally recovered most of their losses.

Aluminum Co. of America dropped about 10 points in a small turnover and American Gas lost about 2 points. Electric Bond & Share and United Light & Power A each closed off 3 points. American Superpower and Niagara Hudson, however, were steady. Utilities Power & Light B was again a buoyant feature, rising 10 points in a few sales.

Oils firmed up as shorts took their profits on the recent decline in this group. Gulf lost nearly 2 points, but Humble, Cities Service and Standard of Kansas closed fractionally higher.

Newmont was a soft spot in the mines, losing about 3 points. Industrials were dull and irregular. General Theatres Equip. lost a point, while Ford of Canada A closed fractionally higher. Fox Film B on the announcement of filing of a receivership petition for Fox Film, but rallied before the close. Investment trusts moved in narrow ranges.

$2,000,000 Order to Spring Bumper

Chicago, Jan. 18—General Spring Bumper Corporation, a division of the Houdaille-Hershey Corporation, has obtained a contract for new business which should approximate $2,000,000, it was announced by Claire L. Barnes, president.

The contract was obtained from one of the largest manufacturers of medium-priced automobiles in the United States. This order is in addition to a large volume of business already booked for 1930.

RCA-Victor to Make Output That Was Handled by Others

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—RCA-Victor Company, Inc., will manufacture all the radio receiving sets, loud speakers, etc., formerly manufactured by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, according to a statement made yesterday by Edward E. Shumaker, president of the company.

Mr. Shumaker's statement, which was made in response to a report that the General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric would distribute radio sets under their own name, follows:

"To correct an erroneous impression which exists, and which some quarters yesterday, I would say that the RCA-Victor Company, the stock of which is owned 50 per cent by the General Electric Company and 20 per cent by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, will manufacture at its Camden, N. J., plant all loud speakers, accessories, etc., which were formerly manufactured by the General Electric and Westinghouse companies.

"The RCA-Victor Co., will be all these activities have been concentrated, will distribute its products not only through the distributing channels of the Radio Corp. and the Victor Talking Machine Co., but also through the distributing channels of the General Electric and Westinghouse companies.

"The arrangement we have with the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, whereby their present facilities of national distribution will be at the service of the RCA-Victor Co., will, it is confidently expected, increase the volume of production of the Camden plant and make the products of the RCA-Victor Co. even more

Census Will Gather First Statistics on Construction

Washington, Jan. 18—For the first time in the history of the country, construction statistics will be collected by the Bureau of the Census when it takes the 1930 census of the nation. This step was decided on by the Census Bureau's advisory committee on the recommendation of the Associated General Contractors of America. Figures on all construction work in process and contracted for will be compiled, and a monthly report for the use of Federal Agencies and other interested persons and organizations.

SHOE ORDERS START PLANTS HUMMING

Haverhill, Jan. 18—With orders obtained in the recent style shows in Boston and St. Louis, and those received by mail or through salesmen, many Haverhill shoe manufacturers have started operations in their plants. From all indications, business will continue to increase until nearly Easter, several plants to be operated to near capacity.

Cutters, the first employes to be called to work, are again at their benches in some factories, after several weeks' slack period.

With improved business conditions soon expected and the fact that no trouble between the Shoe Workers' Protective Union and the manufacturers is likely to occur, owing to the three years' peace pact, the local shoe industry will be in better shape than it has been for some time.

Fred L. Cooper, general manager of the Haverhill Shoe Manufacturers' Association, today stated that he looks for increased business in many of the shoe plants from now until Easter, when the usual dull period ensues.

While many local manufacturers were disappointed over the amount of business obtained in the St. Louis show, they fared quite well in the Boston meeting and exhibits just held in the Hotel Statler. Salesmen for several of the local firms have also started on trips that are expected to result in the receipt of many orders.

FAVORS A FIVE DAY WEEK

Haverhill, Jan. 18—In a report for 1929, which he was to file today, as public property commissioner, former Alderman Parkman B Flanders, who retired from office early this year, commends the union five a week and forty hour working schedule under which several city employes had been engaged in the city since last May, when it went into effect.

Four union carpenters, two plumbers and ten painters worked in his department, and the former alderman expresses the belief they did as much labor in five days, or 40 hours a week, as they had done under the previous schedule of 5½ days, or a 44-hour week.

Reviewing the work of the public property department for 1929, he shows that about $179,000 was expended, this including alterations and improvements of city buildings and grounds, labor and the foundation for the new public comfort station to be erected off Washington sq.

Upswings in Wheat Made in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP)—Quick upturns in prices for wheat resulted today from an announcement the National Grain Corporation bids here for country run wheat were advanced. Lifting of the corporation's bids were restricted to Chicago but an immediate effect on the future deliveries market was to stimulate buying and curtail offerings. Opening ¾-cent down to ¾-cent advance May delivery wheat futures afterward showed material gain around.

Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting ⅜c decline to ⅛c advance and subsequently scoring a general rise.

Hat Makers Show Larger Profits

New York, Jan. 18—John B. Stetson Co. reports for year ended Oct. 31 net profit of $1,671,468 after depreciation, charges and federal taxes, against $1,460,344 in the preceding year. Sales totaled $13,333,687, against $14,711,423. Surplus on Oct. 31, 1929, was $9,967,755.

Bond Record Set

New bond offerings this week at $305,058,000 surpassed all previous weekly peace time totals.

ULTRA MODERN FABLES in SLANG

with apologies to George Ade

The Fable of the Big Noise that went p-f-f-s-s-t!

ONCE upon a Time in Our Town, this week as a matter of fact, One of the Neighbors got all Hot and Bothered and Shouted from the House tops because 22,690 readers of His Newspaper had written to Various of his Departments on a Variety Of subjects.

Now, we know it isn't Good Form to Talk about the Neighbors (very much), but this Time we Really Must say a Word.

As Fellow-workers in the Newspaper Business we congratulate our Neighbor, the Boston Globe, on getting So Much Mail. It must help Colonel Gow to have so many Cash Customers.

On the other hand, we can't help but Feel that our Neighbor blows a Big Horn on a Small Car. During the recently ended Anno Domini the Boys in Blue struggled through Our Portals with 40,577 Letters for just One Department in Our Newspaper. Ladies from the famous "Rock Bound Coast" to the equally famous "Sun Kissed Sands" asked our Martha Lee more questions than the Five-Year-Old Daughter of an absent-minded professor, and our Martha answered them ALL.

MARTHA LEE, you may remember, is our Domestic Science expert who Helps Wives to keep their Husbands by being Good Cooks, and helps Single Women to get Husbands the Same Way. In Addition to her Mail, Martha Conducts Cooking Classes—day and evening—and Also answers phone Inquiries and Questions asked by those who Come In to See Her.

Of course, we are not Bragging, you understand, but somehow we can't Help Thinking that our Neighbor gazes a Little Too Fondly at his 22,690 letters when Measured Against Martha's 40,577. If we Wanted to Brag we could say Something about the Even Larger Number of letters which come to the Other Members of our family — Priscilla Price who gives Shopping News, Ann Arden who answers Style Questions, Betty Bonnell who tells about Home Furnishings, Beatrice Fairfax who Advises the Lovelorn (and How); Mrs. Beeckman who knows so much about Etiquette, and Various and Sundry other persons To The Tune of 57,800 Letters Additional. According to our Adding Machine, this makes Something Like 98,377 Letters from readers who Wanted to Know Things and asked us to Tell Them.

But We Refrain. We are glad our neighbor had So Much Fun With His Mail and we hope that he continues getting Plenty of It, although We can't help thinking that We will continue getting Plenty More.

MORAL: You never can Tell the Size of the Car by the Sound of the Horn*

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

We Should Encourage Railroads to Operate Own Barge Lines

PRESIDENT HOOVER once stated that the greatest waste in this country was our failure to use our water resources.

No river, he said, should be allowed to run down to the sea without having performed the maximum service of irrigation, power supply and TRANSPORTATION.

River transportation in the United States lags because it lacks the co-operation of the railroads. Until that co-operation is secured, we shall continue to get scant return for the scores of millions we spend on improving inland waterways.

Big, economical river steamers and barges cannot be filled with port-to-port traffic, any more than ocean steamers. The railroads must feed and distribute for them.

New York and Hamburg contribute little of the freight that moves between those ports. Each port is a traffic funnel through which railroad trains pour their contents into ship holds. So with river traffic in Germany. Railroads pour traffic into barges on Elbe and Rhine to be transported cheaply by water to Hamburg or Rotterdam for export. That, incidentally, is an important reason for the growth of Germany's export trade.

THE Mississippi system renders no such service to us. It does not drain traffic from the Mississippi valley at cheap river rates to New Orleans for export. The reason is that our private-owned railroads will not "short-haul" themselves and give the "long-haul" (and most of the revenue) to a competing water carrier. The courts have upheld the railroads in resisting this co-operation.

It might be wise to make it worth their while to co-operate. Why not allow and encourage the railroads to own barge lines of their own? Then it would be to their advantage to dump all suitable freight at the earliest moment into the cheaper water carrier.

Then it would be the business of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make sure that the public got the advantage of the cheaper transportation thus provided. By law, already, the commission has control of rail-and-water rates and also all-water rates of rail-owned water lines. It would certainly not give us less than we now have, in effective river transportation. It might give us a great deal more.

THE government-owned barge lines on the Mississippi are admittedly being run only until a suitable purchaser can be found. If they are to be sold, why not sell them to a group of railroads or to an individual rail carrier. President Markham of the Illinois Central a few years ago said this was the way to get out of the Mississippi system the service it could render. Why not give President Markham's idea a trial?

It is too bad the Interstate Commerce Commission did not cover the subject in its outline of an American transportation system—its suggested group of railroad consolidations.

This is the sixth and last of a series of editorials on the proposed merger of American railroads.

Electricity at 4 1-2 Cents

In a "Town Meeting" Section of Greater Boston

TOLD one year ago that thereafter their electricity was to cost them 3½, instead of 6 cents per kilowatt hour, the heads of 7000 families in the Greater Boston town of Belmont must have regarded themselves as, in this respect, among the most favored citizens of Massachusetts.

They were.

But now comes Mr. Edward F. Taylor, of the Belmont lighting company, to request the approval of the Department of Public Utilities for FURTHER reductions.

Beginning on the first of the coming month, Manager Taylor says, his organization can very well afford to sell electricity to be used for domestic purposes at 5 cents per kilowatt hour.

And, Mr. Taylor adds, he sees no reason why, with the approval of the State Department, the rate may not be cut on July 1 to 4½ cents.

The Belmont organization is a MUNICIPAL plant, owned by the community. It buys its electricity from the Cambridge Company; which in turn buys from the Edison Company of Boston.

We offer these facts for the consideration of the unprejudiced. They appear to show that the success of municipal lighting depends to a large extent upon the character and ability of the men at the head of the enterprise, which is quite as true of private ownership.

Belmont, handling its larger affairs in town meeting, is fortunate in its lighting committee as well as in its plant-manager.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—Uptown New York frequently registers the disturbances of Wall Street with the accuracy of a seismograph. Long before extras were being howled about the panic in late October, hospital nurses say many patients northward were touched by depression—a sort of mental contagion.

During the anguishing hours when the entire financial structure seemed tottering, there were thousands of wives at home who had a presentiment of disaster and tried to reach their husbands by telephone. One woman, indeed, rushed to her husband's office, arriving ten minutes after he had shot himself.

People along the street who knew nothing of the flurry below Fulton say they were suddenly touched by a vague melancholia. In many of the department stores, too, a check up during the dangerous hours revealed that many shoppers had suddenly disappeared to go home.

Similarly, a day of large winnings is felt uptown by some peculiar though transference. Head waiters in expensive "from caviar to contreau" places who are not in touch with Wall Street, have a hunch to prepare for a big dinner crowd and it turns out.

Thus does Wall Street become an uncanny barometer of emotions. A bad day is quickly reflected in the theaters and restaurants. Even subway passengers are able to tell by the expressions of home going workers in the financial houses the trend of the day in the market.

Calloused speculators are the most susceptible of all people to the vagaries of superstition and that indefinable quality called "the hunch." They have found the "hunch" is after all as likely to turn out successfully as digested dope of financial pages.

The biggest patronage among fortune tellers, crystal gazers and sundry soothsayers comes from marginal dabblers in stocks. Many big operators carry charms. In their world of tangled fears, they grasp at every straw.

Drink or drugs are rarely so insidious as stock gambling fever. Many drug addicts have been "off the stuff" for years. The reformed toper is everywhere. But the chronic visitor to the brokerage board room seldom gets entirely away from the lure of speculation. He may drop out awhile but now and then come back for a "flyer." And if he makes a killing he joins the regulars again.

In our town the hardy pitch players would be routed from their game in the hotel office each spring by the annual exhortations of a hat gospeling tent evangelist. He shamed them from the gaming table with his dramatic recital of an old poem—one verse of which ran:

"You lie! I saw you steal that ace!"
A crashing blow across the face
A pistol shot and death's disgrace
Were in that pack of cards!

For a week or so the pitch players would not be seen in their nightly game following the evangelist's visit. But one by one, just like Wall Street players after a panic, they would drift back and the game would run full tilt, well, anyway, 30 cents a corner, until the evangelist came again.

The last man in the New York telephone book is a Mr. Zzyzz. He had never seen his name in a newspaper before until the list came out, and suddenly he became the topic of a thousand stories all over the country. I have known about Mr. Zzyzz for years. They are always paging him when I pass a saw mill.

Boiling Over!

By NELSON HARDING

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

THERE is rhythm in the life of an intestinal roundworm as marked as our own rhythm of day and night.

Fortunately, having no brain worth mentioning, the worm cannot possibly get bored.

H. G. Wells

But there is another side to the life of a parasite. Before it can enjoy this Elysium it has to get there, and it is no easy thing for a worm as simply made as the roundworm to invade a mammalian intestine.

Consequently we find that eggs are produced in enormous numbers—a single Ascaris, it has been reckoned, can produce 15,000 eggs a day—and only very few among these thousands reach their earthly paradise.

In some species, such as the comparatively harmless Ascaris lumbricoides of the human bowel, the eggs pass out with the faeces and a few lucky ones are swallowed by a new host—floating, for example, in his drinking water—and thus win through.

It is simply a matter of hit and miss, and the prolific mother makes as many shots that they cannot all miss.

In other species, however, there are more elaborate histories.

In the dreaded Trichipella spiralis, for example—a worm only a few millimetres long—the adult lives and multiplies in the intestines of a man, a pig, a rat, or another suitable mammal.

The fertilized female burrows into one of the villi and there brings forth living young—sometimes many thousands—which escape into the lymphatic vessels of the host.

Thus reaching the circulation they are carried all over the body until they settle down in the voluntary muscles. They burrow into the muscles, shut themselves up in little, hard cases and wait. Nothing more happens to them until the host dies; but if after his death his flesh is eaten by another mammal—a man by a rat, or a pig by a man—they revive and flourish in the bowels of the latter.

An infected animal may have tens of millions of these parasites patiently waiting in his muscles for his death, and hurrying it up by producing the inflammations or other symptoms of "trichiniasis."

It has been calculated that one ounce of infected or "measly" pork contains 85,000 of them—if the pork was not properly cooked its consumption would involve the liberation of all these parasites in the bowel of the eater, and if half of these were females, producing on the average of a thousand embryos each, the result would be a migration of 40,000,000 young worms into his muscles.

Again, in the guinea-worm, Filaria mendinesis—a worm from one to six feet long—the adults live in the connective tissue of man, just under the skin.

The young escape into the outer world through abscesses caused by the presence of the parasite, and some of them have the good fortune to get into a stream or a pond.

Here they make their way into the bodies of the water fleas, Cyclops, where they wait until the water is drunk by a man careless enough not to filter it first. Thus they reach the human bowel, and thence, presumably by the circulation, they travel to the connective tissue of the skin.

In a case of this kind, where the adults live inside a creature of one species, but the young, in order to get there regularly, enter the bodies of some quite different animal, the latter is called an intermediate host.

These creatures are not all parasites. A huge number of them live harmlessly in salt or fresh water or in soil or the tissues of rotting plants.

Some species are free when they are young, but become parasitic when they mature—such as Strongylus and Dochmius, which infect man, and Tylenchus scandens, which invade the tissues of cereals.

In some, on the other hand, the young are parasitic while the adults are free-living; an example of this is afforded by Sphaerulia bombi whose young grow in the tissues of bees and wasps.

(To Be Continued Monday)

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN may run from danger—but nothing bores him so much as a game or a woman that is perfectly safe.

Nearly everything one does is a "gesture," these days—from wearing a monocle to shooting your husband.

Some men step out of their responsibilities as carelessly as they step out of their shoes—and just leave them around for a woman to pick up after them.

Where is the husband who used to have a brain-storm because his dear little wife WOULD insist on washing his "horrid pipe"? He is probably rummaging through his wife's desk, to see if he can borrow one of her cigarettes, till she gets back from the bridge club.

To a woman a love-affair is like a mystery story, she always wants to see "how it is going to turn out." But a man is usually satisfied to give all his attention to the current chapter, the current emotion—and the current kiss.

It is always the skilled swimmer who is eventually drowned, and the man who has gracefully escaped from so many love affairs that he thinks he bears a charmed life, is usually the one for whom Fate is preparing the next breach-of-promise-suit.

Every breach-of-promise suit is another nail in the coffin of masculine chivalry. When lovely woman stoops to law suits, and seeks to make her sweetie pay—she changes heart-beats into dollars, and washes all her charm away.

Get a New and Better Automobile

Forget the Slump. Stand Up. Don't Be One of Those That Dive Into a Hole

(Copyright, 1930)

THE New Year and the new AUTOMOBILES are here. Get YOUR new car and make the best of the New Year.

1930 brings greater values, greater economy, beauty and durability in cars.

The stock market recently felt an earthquake which, fortunately, had nothing to do with 95 per cent of our 120,000,000 people.

Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, tells you that 1930 is going to be a great year, a good business year, with money abundant and cheap.

Secretary Mellon knows a great deal more about this country and its real condition than any ten thousand Wall Street gamblers boiled down into one.

GET YOUR NEW CAR, get ready for the good New Year, be ready and able to make the right appearance in it.

There are two ways of acting when something disagreeable happens. One kind of a man dives into a hole and dies.

The other kind goes out and says, "Show me who did that, let me get at him."

Arrange to see the new cars, the new models at Mechanics Building, beginning today; examine every make, then MAKE YOUR CHOICE, according to your means.

There isn't a man making a fairly decent income in the United States that cannot afford a car.

There is no such man that can afford to be WITHOUT A CAR.

If you saw a worm crawling slowly along the ground and a bird flying overhead you wouldn't think much of that worm if you knew that he had it in his power to get wings and fly also.

If the worm said: "I am crawling simply for the sake of economy," you would think less of him than ever.

There is no economy in being INEFFICIENT.

There is no economy in wasting time.

There is no economy in depriving your family of the greatest and most healthful happiness that an American family can have, the health of fresh air and sunshine, the happiness of being together in the enjoyment of pleasure.

GET A CAR.

Man possesses two kinds of wealth; one, and less important, is money. The second, and more important, is TIME.

If anybody said, "I can make my money go twice as far as it does now," you would pay attention.

A good automobile says to you, "I will make your time three times as valuable as it is now."

You owe it to yourself to pay attention to that. To get the car makes you healthier and makes you live longer, because length of life depends on accomplishment.

And with a car you can accomplish twice as much as you can without it.

The makers of automobiles have their new cars and their announcements ready. The cost of operating a car is ridiculously cheap.

If six members of a family went from New York to San Francisco and back, the trip would cost them for railroad tickets alone, leaving out food and Pullman cars for sleeping, not less than $1200 for the six round trips.

With a comfortable automobile, with plenty of room for luggage behind and on the running-board, you could go to San Francisco and back, taking six, for $100, barring wear and tear on the car, cost of tires, gasolene and oil.

And after you get to the Pacific you can run up and down the edge of it, see California, Oregon, Washington, the great mountains and deserts, big trees, the wonderful Pacific and the more wonderful inhabitants of Hollywood.

HOW CAN YOU AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT A CAR?

Nothing is more important than going up and down in the world, especially in your own country, and becoming acquainted with its beauties and its wonders.

You remember "when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them.

"And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from WALKING up and down in it."

Let us be grateful that Satan in those busiest days was compelled to "WALK up and down" in the world, and didn't have any automobile to carry him.

What would he have done with a first-class automobile? He could have covered comfortably in a few days the territory through which Moses wandered for forty years.

See this earth, and don't "walk up and down in it."

MOTOR up and down in it, from one ocean to the other, from your residence to the seashore, and to the mountains.

The difference between a man WITHOUT an automobile and a man WITH an automobile, as you have often heard, is a difference as great as between a toad that can only hop and a bird that can fly.

Be a bird, NOT A HOPTOAD.

See the new automobiles and GET ONE.
